ANOTHER CRASH.

Rear End Collision on the West Shore.

A Dozen Persons Killed and Many Injured.

Full Speed Into a Freight Train on the Track.

Frightful Scenes Among the Dead and Dying.

The Entire Mass of Wreckages Takes Fire and Burns Before the Eyes of the Horrified Spectators—List of the Dead.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 6.—A rear-end collision occurred on the West Shore railroad about 2 a. m. to-day between the westbound St. Louis limited and a freight train, about five miles east of Savannah. Fifteen persons are reported killed and 20 injured.

The St. Louis limited is train No. 3, which left New York at 5 p. m. yesterday.

J. J. Sullivan, of this city, was on the train on his way to Buffalo. He was in the second car, the one behind the smoking car. He had been in there but a short time before the accident occurred.

"I understood from a conversation with one of the brakemen," said Mr. Sullivan, that it was a tail-end collision. A freight train with which our train collided was running on the passenger train's time. When the crash came the scene was a terrible one. The smoking car was smashed to splinters and the shrieks of the wounded who were imprisoned in the wreckage were heartrending.

"The accident occurred about 3 o'clock. left the scene on the special train and do not know what had been done toward caring for the injured. There were about 15 killed and I should think about 20 injured. When I left the dead and wounded were scattered about on the ground inside the tracks and the surviving passengers were doing all they could for the relief of the wounded. The victims as far as I could see were all men who were in the smoking car. None of the passengers in the sleepers were injured."

CONSUMED BY FLAMES.

An Awful Scene of Death and Destruction.

Syracuse, Aug. 6.—The St. Louis express on the West Shore railroad which leaves here at 1:58 a. m., met with a terrible accident three miles west of Port Byron this morning, near what is known as the Dutchess cut.

The train was running at a high rate of speed, and at that point ran into a freight train. The wreck was an awful one, and up to 9:30 the deaths number 11. Those killed outright and those who died from their injuries were all italians but one, the fireman of the passenger train.

Eleven Italians were badly hurt, and four will probably die. Twelve cars of the freight train were wrecked and piled up on the tracks, completely blocking the tracks.

The Italians were in the smoking car which was completely wrecked. Hardly a whole piece of timber was left of the car. The wreck took fire, and the passenger train was burned with the exception of three sleeping cars. The train was made up of two express cars, a baggage car, a smoking car, a day car and four sleeping cars.

The Killed.

The following is a list of the killed and wounded:

Michael Bergen, fireman on passenger train, lives at Macedon. Alphonse Carilla, Coco Rocco, Veanzo Dinuri, Dominico Richone, Thomas Mermino, John Rosio, Dominico Sautilo, Antonio Scazzaffava, John Grambott, all Italians.

An unknown Italian died on the way to Syracuse.

Injured.

Mihle Codarella, Giovanni Rosso, Runco Agostmo, Tomaso Canzorino, Lupnis Camilli, Luppis Agostino, Arico Cistone, Joseph Mascarelli, Angelo Novelli, Rocco Agosturo, Antonio Colobella, all Italians; Benjamin Pitts of Oaeonta, James Chasen of St. Louis, J. Myers of Buffalo, Frank Seiter of Syracuse, John Preston of West Troy, Patrick Ryan, engineer passenger train, East Buffalo, Mr. Tellor of West Point, Mr. Lewice of Norwich.

The Italians came from Tompkins Cove, Rockland county, and were on their way to Niagara Falls to work on the tunnel there. They were in charge of interpreter Severino Scozzavana.

The accident was caused by the freight train breaking in two. A flagman was sent back but the passenger engineer did not see him because of a dense fog.

The dead and wounded have been brought here. The accident occurred at Montezuma station. B. E. Pitts of New York, one of the injured, is musical director of the "Uncle Isaac" company and John P. Shultz, property man of the company is slightly injured, Engineer Regan is internally injured and his condition is critical.

Dr. Maxwell Convicted.

Canton, O., Aug. 6.—The sensational Maxwell malpractice case came to a close here yesterday afternoon. The jury retired at about 2:30 o'clock and at 5:30 brought in a verdict of guilty. The case has been on trial for the past two weeks and has attracted unusual attention. Motion for a new trial was immediately made by the defense.

Chicago Gas War.

New York, August 6.—H. M. Flagler, of the Standard Oil company, to-day authorized positive denials of the statements that the Standard Oil company or any of the Standard oil party had any interest, direct or indirect, in the Economic Gas company that had been organized in opposition to the Chicago Gas company.

Destroyed by Fire.

Pioneer, Aug 6.—The large residence belonging to "Billy" Stevenson a saloonist, was consumed by fire Monday night about midnight.

Some of the goods were saved. The family is in Detroit.

WORKING THE BANKS.

A Swindler Who Did Not Get Away With the Swag.

New York, Aug. 6.—The Jersey City police yesterday received a dispatch from Pittsfield, Mass., saying that the Pittsfield national bank had received a dispatch from Jersey City signed John S. Wolfe, a depositor, asking that $60 be sent immediately to that city without identification. The bank officers suspected fraud and notified the police. The police arrested the man, who said his name was John S. Woods, and denied sending the dispatch signed Wolfe, but was identified by the operator. Four checks were found on him for $50 each, payable to the order of Samuel P. Dennis, and drawn upon the Mechanics bank of New Haven by Henry D. Hotchkiss, cashier of the New Haven traction company. None of the checks are endorsed.

Hammond is Dying.

Seattle, Wash, Aug. 6—Charles P. Hammond, made notorious because of his operations in Cleveland street, London, is thought to be dying. Eight months ago he was committed to the city jail for grand larceny and was afterwards sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, but the case is now on appeal. He claims that the principal witness against him is detective Tod Hunter of the Scotland yard. Hammond is suffering with pneumonia and is also afflicted with a complication of diseases.

Saved Her Grandchild.

Rahway, N. J. Aug. 6.—George Foster, jr., the 3-year-old son of George Foster, was saved from drowning Tuesday through the bravery of his grandmother, who is 63 years old. The child fell into a deep pool in the Rahway river. He was discovered by the old lady lying motionless in the bottom. She plunged bravely in head first and succeeded in bringing the boy to the surface. Both were pulled into a passing boat, and the boy was promptly resuscitated.

The Kite Reported.

God Haven, Discoe Island, Greenland, via Copenhagen, June 29.—The Kite arrived at God Haven on June 27 and sails to-day for Upernavik. All are well. Peary.

EATING UP THE FORESTS.

Myriads of Worms Destroying the Pine.

Miles of Pennsylvania's Timber May Not Be Saved from the Ravages of the Insects.

Bradford, Pa., Aug. 6.—Potter county is alarmed, and with good cause, over the ravages of a worm that is destroying the foliage and killing off the hemlock timber. Only about five days ago it was noticed by lumbermen that the tops of the heavy timber on the mountains were turning brown, as though the trees were dying.

The trees looked exactly as though they had gone through a forest fire or were withering up for lack of irrigation. An investigation was at once set on foot by the lumbermen interested, and it was discovered that the affected trees were covered with myriads of worms.

The worms were eating the green and tender foliage of this year's growth, and when that had disappeared, turned their attention to the growth of the preceding year, the woody twig not being touched.

A remarkable scene is presented in the "choppings," where the bark peelers are at work. The worms are swarming about the men by the millions, while on all the trees from Coudersport to Port Allegheny, miles and miles of trees are turning brown, and ruin is threatened to the vast lumber interests of that section.

The worm that is doing the damage is of the "measuring worm" species, about an inch long, and barely an eighth of an inch in diameter. Its depredations are taking to such a vast area, that experts have already been placed on their track, and the following accurate description is furnished: The worm is covered with a row of spots on each side, and has ten legs, six in front and four awkward props behind. In moving it arches its back, hence the vulgar name of "measuring worm."

The life of the worm is from four to six weeks, when its death gives birth to a fly or gnat. They are exceedingly voracious, and during the brief period of their existence eat several thousand times their own weight of growing vegetation. Though this horde of worms may only be a transient visitation still there is nothing known of them here or their ravages, even the oldest lumbermen stating that they had never seen them before. Some of the worms, with specimens of their destructive work, have been sent to the agricultural department at Harrisburg.

WANTED TO LYNCH THE BOY.

He Had Pulled Out a Jew's Whiskers.

An Excited Mob Cooled Down by a Policeman With a Hickory Club.

New York, Aug. 6.—George Riebstein, 15 years old, of No. 52 Walton street, Williamsburg, is the leader of a gang of boys who have for a long time persecuted Hebrews of the Polish quarter in Sigel street by pulling their whiskers.

Jacob Funk, a glazier with a long and bushy beard, who lives at No. 68 Sigel street, came out of his apartments and sat down on his stoop. Riebstein and his followers came along, and as they passed the stoop where Funk had just seated himself Riebstein caught hold of his whiskers and pulled out a handful of hair. Funk cried out with pain and the boys ran away.

Solomon Shertz, of No. 52 Sigel street, and a number of neighbors started in pursuit. Riebstein was disabled by a fall but managed to get a cobblestone and hurl it at his pursuers. The stone struck Schertz on the head and knocked him senseless. This second assault further incensed the outraged Hebrews, nearly every one of whom had at one time or other lost a portion of his whiskers at the hands of the lawless gang.

The mob soon caught up with Riebstein. While others held him one of the Hebrews tied a long handkerchief about his neck and shouted to his companions to get a rope. While several went in search of a rope a crowd of nearly a thousand Hebrews gathered about the boy and struck him from all sides. He began to bleed and the more timid of the men fled.

Funk, however, was determined to have revenge. He shouted to his countrymen to come on and teach their persecutors a lesson.

While the excitement was at its height Policeman Dillon, of the Stagg street police station, made his way through the crowd and took charge of Riebstein. He ordered the crowd to fall back, but the excited men refused to obey, and catching young Riebstein by the legs they tried to drag him away from the policeman. Dillon had to use his club vigorously before the men would release their hold, and after they had done so Funk stole up behind the policeman and dealt Riebstein a powerful blow in the face.

WOOL AND A YARD WIDE.

Warranted Not to Rip, Ravel or Bag at the Knee.

Platform of the People's Party in Ohio.

Free Silver, an Income Tax, Plenty of Money, With Uncle Sam the Banker and the Goose Will Hang High.

Springfield, O., Aug. 6.—When the convention was called to order yesterday afternoon by Hon. H. T. Barnes, of the state committee, at least 450 delegates occupied seats in the beautifully decorated hall. A more orderly or intelligent convention is seldom seen. Many ladies were on the floor of the hall, and several of them occupied seats on the stage. Among the distinguished guests were H. E. Taubeneck, Illinois; F. N. Snider, Kansas; M. L. Welkin, Kansas; M. Warner, Texas.

The proceedings were opened with prayer by Joshua Crawford, and Chairman Barnes then read letters of encouragement from Senator Peffer and Hon. G. T. Gaithers, member of the national committee of Alabama.

Hugh Cavanaugh, of Cincinnati was introduced as temporary chairman and when he advanced to the front of the stage he was greeted with hearty applause.

Cavanaugh said this was the most important convention held by any party for many years. It is composed of men who have no axes to grind. We propose, said he, to serve notice on dominant parties that they have served out their time. We differ from both the other state conventions which have been held this year notably from the one in Columbus in that we have not so many senatorial candidates in the field. We are here to represent a principle which must in the end prevail. Politicians have been saying: "You till the soil and we will attend to politics."

Cavanaugh said that John Sherman, like Ingalls, would be relegated to private life. If the Mansfield iceberg fully understood his position he would say with Woolsey, "had I but served the people with half the strength I have served Wall street they would not now leave me in my old age."

H. B. Hutchinson was selected temporary secretary. Various committees retired and pending their return to report Robert Schilling addressed the convention.

The following committee on resolutions was elected: First district, Charles Platt, Hamilton; second, E. A. Weir, Hamilton; third, Frank Pettigrew, Montgomery; fourth, Moses Townsend, Mercer; fifth, Byron Powers, Allen; sixth, A. J. Carpenter, Defiance; seventh, J. N. Smith, Sandusky; eighth, John Seitz, Seneca; ninth, E. J. Bracken, Franklin; 10th, William A. Hance, Clark; 11th, C. E. Edwards, Highland; 12th, J. B. Massie, Lawrence; 13th, J. C. Stevenson, Jackson; 14th, J. R. Abernerly, Licking; 15th, Amos Miller, Crawford; 16th, S. P. Wilson, Stark; 18th, A. M. Baird, Columbia; 19th, W. J. Weaver, Portage; 20th, Ed. G. Vail, Cuyahoga; 21st, Hugo Preyer, Cuyahoga.

At a meeting of the committee on permanent organization, Hugh Cavanaugh, of Cincinnati, Dr. H. I. Hixson, of Canton, John Seitz, of Seneca, and Joshua Crawford, were named for permanent chairman. Cavanaugh was finally chosen.

DOWN TO BUSINESS.

The Hammer and Anvil Used to Call the Convention to Order.

Springfield, O., Aug. 6.—It was exactly 9:15 o'clock this morning when Temporary Chairman Cavanaugh called the people's party convention to order, by pounding with a brand-new sledge hammer upon the anvil that stood upon the flag-bedecked block at the front of the stage.

Considerable time was taken up by Dr. Tuckerman of Cleveland, in explaining the proportional ballot, which was adopted for the nominating of candidates in the convention. The regular proceedings were then opened with prayer by Rev. E. P. Foster, of Cincinnati.

The report of the committee on permanent organization was the first business in order.

Hugh Cavanaugh was recommended as permanent chairman, and Dr. H. F. Higdon permanent secretary. The report was adopted. Cavanaugh said he had too much respect for the feelings of the delegates to inflict upon them another speech, and after returning thanks for the honor conferred upon him called for the report of the committee on device.

The committee recommended that the plow and hammer be adopted as the device for the People's party ticket. Mr. Voiles, of Cincinnati, moved to amend the report by substituting "the home" as the device for the head of the ticket.

The figure of justice holding the scales was also recommended for a device, but the report of the committee was finally adopted. The report of the committee on rules and order of business was next read and adopted.

Chairman Cavanaugh then called for the report of the committee on resolutions. After a brief preamble the following resolutions were offered:

The Platform.

The instability of the municipal governments of the state has led to the creation of enormous municipal debts which are burdensome to all the people, and we therefore demand that the constitution of the state be so amended that it will be impossible to change the forms of municipal governments to meet the changing fortunes of politicians, and that no change of forms of municipal governments be permitted without the consent of the people.

Whereas, The Standard Oil company has violated its contract by turning over to an alien trust its powers and privileges received under the laws of Ohio, we demand the forfeiture of its charter.

We demand the enactment and rigid enforcement of a law for the suppression of all forms of gambling in futures in agricultural and mechanical products.

We favor the election of United States senators by popular vote of the people of the state.

We demand the rigid enforcement of laws against adulteration or counterfeiting of food.

We demand free school books for our public school system and compulsory education.

We demand the prohibition of child labor under 14 years of age.

We demand the abolition of contract prison labor, believing in the doctrine of equal rights and special privileges to none.

We demand that taxation, national, state or municipal, shall not be used to build up one interest at the expense of another.

The right to make and issue money is a sovereign power to be maintained by the people for common benefit, hence we demand the abolition of national banks as banks of issue, and as a substitute for national bank notes we demand that full legal tender treasury notes be issued in sufficient volume to conduct the business of the country on a cash basis, and we favor government loans directly to the people on real estate or other ample security at a rate of interest not exceeding two per cent.

We demand free and unlimited coinage of silver.

We oppose extravagance that collects of the people each year $500,000,000 for national expenses in a time of peace.

We demand the passage of laws prohibiting alien ownership of lands and that congress take prompt action to devise some plan to obtain all lands now owned by alien and foreign syndicates, and that all lands held by railroads and other corporations in excess of such as is actually used and needed by them be reclaimed by the government and held for actual settlers only.

We demand a just and suitable system of graduated tax on incomes.

We believe that the solution of the liquor problem lies in abolishing the element of profit, which is a source of constant temptation, and evil, and we therefore demand that the exclusion, importation, exportation, manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors shall be conducted by the government, or state, at cost, through agencies and salaried officials in such towns and cities as shall apply for such agencies.

The following preamble preceded the resolutions:

We hold that labor is the basis of all wealth and should be protected by law.

We believe that the right to vote should be given to everybody, irrespective of sex or color; we demand government ownership of all means of transportation and communication between and by the people of the United States.

We favor liberal pensions to all honorably discharged union soldiers of the late civil war and generous care for their widows and orphans, and demand that the differences between the value of gold and greenbacks at the date of payment be made equal to gold, so as to place the soldier on the same footing as the bondholder has been.

The resolution referring to liquor was recommended to the national committee for adoption.

All the resolutions except that referring to the liquor question were adopted in the lump. After considerable debate on a motion to lay the liquor plank on the table, the committee's recommendation to refer it to the national committee was adopted and the committe was dismissed.

John Seitz for Governor.

The chairman then called for nominations of a candidate for governor, but before this business could be proceeded with the following resolutions was offered as an addition to the platform:

"We demand the rigid enforcement of the eight hour law in all such states as have adopted it, and we recommend its adoption by all employes."

"Now," said Chairman Cavanaugh, after the resolution had been adopted, "we will have nominations for a candidate for governor."

H. F. Barnes, of Tiffin, in a short speech presented the name of Alva Agee of Gallia county.

Henry Focker, of Picaway, nominated Hon. John Seitz, of Tiffin.

John C. Stevenson, of Jackson, presented the name of J. C. H. Cobb, of Wellston.

B. W. Robing, of Van Wert, seconded the nomination of Seitz.

M. B. Coolidge, of Vinton, seconded the nomination.

Seitz was nominated on the first ballot.

BLAIR WILL BE THE NEXT.

His Sister's Efforts to Save His Neck.

His Mother Has Been Kept In Total Ignorance of the Fate of Her Son.

Columbus, O., August 6.—The next man to be executed at the Penitentiary annex is Edward Blair, who is one of the most desperate criminals within the state prison. The state board of pardons will hold a special meeting next Tuesday to consider his case, but the members of the board have already concluded to let Blair hang.

The meeting Tuesday is more to satisfy the frantic sister of the condemned man, who is making every effort imaginable to save his life. The date of Blair's execution is August 21, and he, therefore, has little more than two weeks to live.

A peculiar fact in connection with Blair's case is that his mother, who resides in Highland county, is totally ignorant of his fate and does not even know that he is a murderer. A correspondent to-day conversed with Blair's sister, who is in the city to appear before the pardon board in behalf of the condemned man. She is a comely young woman of a petite figure and blonde complexion. She dresses stylishly and possesses more than ordinary intelligence. In speaking of her brother's case she said:

"My mother knows nothing at all of this great trouble, and if she suspected my brother was condemned to die she would go mad. We have kept all the newspapers away from her and instructed all neighbors not to speak of him in her presence. It has required the utmost care to keep her ignorant of the affair, but she does not dream of such a thing. It is true that she knows he is here in prison, but she thinks it is on the old charge of burglary, which he was under sentence for when he escaped and got into the other trouble."

"What will you do when the worst comes, if the pardon board refuses to interfere? You can't keep it from her then, can you?"

"O, I don't want to think of that," said the condemned man's sister, turning away with her eyes full of tears.

Blair's mother is only forty-five years old, while his father is nearly seventy-five. The old gentleman is fully aware of the terrible predicament in which his son is at present. The Blair family, with the exception of Edward, bears an excellent reputation, and until within the last few years Ed was an exemplary young man.

He was a Sunday School teacher some years ago and the ideal of the neighborhood. When parents wished to point to an example for their sons, it was their custom to say:

"Just look at Ed Blair. What a fine young man he is. Why can't you be like him?"

Blair got to associating with a fast crowd, however, and when he once tasted of the cup of worldly pleasure, he lost his good judgment. He followed the road to ruin until it brought him within the shadow of the gallows.

TWO PERSONS KILLED.

An Excursion Train Plunges Into a Mail Train.

Champlain, N. Y., Aug. 6.—A train conveying a Sunday school excursion from Ellenburg and Rouses' Point and intervening stations on the Central Vermont railroad, ran into a mail train, which had the right of way, just east of this station at 20 minutes of 7 o'clock last night. The excursion train had many persons on board and was returning from Wellsburgh Point.

Wm. Angell, aged about 17, son of a merchant of this place, and Sim Venett, a laborer, of Chateauguay Lake, were killed outright and some twenty people were more or less injured. The more seriously injured are: Henry La Maintain, of Champlain, both legs cut off below the knee; it is thought he will live. Sydney William Moore, both legs broken; Henry Sweet, of Ellenburg Center, arm fractured and body and limbs bruised; John Patterson, of Perry's Hills, leg broken; Mrs. Lewis, of Mora, head and limbs bruised; Miss A. Bateman, of Perry's Mills, hip dislocated; D. Levy, Albany, wrist broken and seriously bruised.

Several other passengers were more or less slightly injured. The engines telescoped and two cars were badly smashed, one on each train.

Roustan to Leave Washington.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The state department has been informed that M. Roustan, the French minister here, has been appointed French minister to Spain. It is not known at the department when Minister Roustan will leave Washington or who his successor will be.

THE BLACK MAN'S WOES.

Will the Grand Army Take Him Into Fellowship.

The Question Has Stirred Up a Political Row.

Washington Selected for the Next Meeting Place of the National Encampment—General Gossip.

Detroit, Aug. 6—While the delegates to the G. A. R. encampment were getting together this morning for their second days session it was apparent that the chief bone of contention of the silver anniversary—the color line imbroglio—was not destined to be disposed of as amicably as had been anticipated yesterday by those in favor of peace and harmony.

The recommendation of the commander-in-chief in favor of the creation of a provisional department for the colored veteran has met with a storm of opposition from unexpected quarters, and after the adjournment yesterday afternoon scores of delegates were in receipt of dispatches, the majority from the east and west, urging and in some cases demanding that the encampment should declare itself in no uncertain way on the right of the black men to meet the southern whites on an equal basis under the shadow of their post.

Quite a number of messages were also received by the commander-in-chief himself. One of them a fair sample of th whole, came from Auditor of state E. W. Poe, of Columbus, Ohio, who signed his official title. It read: "Our colored comrade fought for the same cause and flag that you and I did. Then way not allow him all the rights guaranteed him under our ritual? You cannot rightfully, justly or manfully treat him otherwise." The committee which has the matter in hand is composed of Hon. A. L. Conger, of Ohio, George S. Merrill, Mass.; E. T. Henderson, Virginia; J. C. Lineham, New Hampshire, and J. A. Atkins, Ohio.

One and all of these were buttonholed last night by scores opponents of the proposed new department some of them delegates and others plain comrades, until they were glad to put themselves out of reach of their volunteer advisers.

In the crowds that filled the hotel rotundas and at the various camps, little else was talked of. Politics entered more or less into the discussions and it was noticeable that a good many republicans of national reputation boldly ranged themselves against Veazy and separate colored posts.

Considerable emphasis was placed upon the fact that the commander-in-chief's report virtually asked the encampment to reverse the precedent that was established by General Alger while commander-in-chief by his famous order in which he compelled the Louisiana posts to recognize the colored veterans as on a level with themselves.

One of the old parliamentarians of the encampment and who himself as a chief executive officer was called upon several years ago to settle some troublesome questions, said this morning when asked his opinion regarding the probable outcome:

"The encampment in my opinion will abolish the color line entirely, although this would mean a signal rebuke to the retiring commander. If the issue is forced on that line as a matter of principle it will be adopted in a second. The Grand Army fought that the colored man might have his rights. It is not going back on its principles at this late day. It is true that injustice may occasionally be done in a few cases, but the rights of the many should be considered before the grievances of the few, and if the enemies of the colored man are going to push this thing, then the color line will be wiped out altogether. And it ought to be."

But regardless of all this patriotic talk the southern members are firm in their statement that if the color line is abolished there will not be a Grand Army man south of the Ohio and Potomac in one year.

The selection of Washington as a place for the next annual encampment does not give general satisfaction, as the west claims that their section, as well as the south, is being neglected.

The session was called to order promptly at 9 o'clock, but the report of the committee was not ready for presentation and the encampment proceeded with regular business on the program for the day.

The Color Question.

The report of the judge advocate general derived it chief interest from his decision on the vexed race question. As his conclusions differ from the commander-in-chief's, the dispute is only further complicated. The decision is as follows:

"The question proposed is 'whether there can lawfully be two departments covering the same territory at the same time; for instance, a department made up of white posts and another of black posts; or one of foreign born, and another of native born.'

"I think the question must be answered in the negative.

"2. The idea is contrary to the usage and universal understanding of the order hitherto.

"2. The rules and regulations, chapter 1, article 3, section 1, provides for precinct organizations to be designated by names and numbers indicating that there may be several posts in the same place. But section 2 of the same article provides for state organizations to be known as 'department of (name of state or territory) Grand Army of the Republic.' No other name or designation is contemplated or provided for. If a second state organization be formed in any state it would have the same name precisely without addition or diminution as the first, if the regulation is followed. If additional departments in states may be formed on lines of color or of birth, they may on lines of personal followings or personal antipatoies, or upon disagreements of any kind. But without adverting further to the obvious evils likely to follow from establishing rival departments in any state, it is enough that it is very clear that the rules and regulations do not provide for nor warrant the establishment of but one department in any state or territory."

CAPT. JOHN M. PALMER,

Of New York, the New Commander-in-Chief.

Detroit, Aug. 6.—When the encampment had been called to order the Ohio delegation entered a protest against the sales of duplicate badge medals of the encampment, and the body was about to appoint a committee to investigate the subject when Col. Duffield stated that the Michigan department own d the die and would not have it put to any illegitimate uses. The matter then dropped.

By a unanimous vote it was decided to proceed to nominations for commander-in-chief. When the roll of states was called Illinois responded that it had no candidate.

Wisconsin nominated A. G. Weissert, of Milwaukee, and Gen. Lucius Fairchild made a stirring speech in his behalf. He said that Weissert was the best Grand Army man that he had ever met, and would make a honest, able and efficient commander.

Delegate Clark, of Illinois, seconded the Wisconsin man, reviewing his war record.

Ohio nominated Gen. Samuel H. Hurst.

Before the first formal ballot Gen. Hurst, of Ohio, peremptorily withdrew his name from the consideration of the encampment.

The ballot resulted: J. M. Palmer, of Albany, N. Y., 322; Weissert, 270; Smedburg, of California, 177.

The roll was again called and on the second ballot there were numerous defections from the Wisconsin man. Palmer coming within 10 of the number necessary to a choice.

Before the third ballot was ordered the California delegation cast its vote for Palmer. The latter's election was then made unanimous.

Col. Henry M. Duffield of Detroit was elected senior vice-commander by acclamation.

Capt. John Palmer was born on Staten Island, March 22, 1842, and has a splendid war record. He enlisted in the Ninety-first New York volunteers, Sept. 10, 1861, and was constantly with that regiment until it was mustered out July 8, 1865, taking part in all its engagements.

He was seriously injured at the battle of Five Forks. Since the war he has been engaged in business at Albany, N. Y. As a member of the G. A. R., he was for several terms, commander of Lew Benedict post No. 5; was twice elected department commander and in 1879 was elected senior vice commander-in-chief.

He is a forcible speaker, a model presiding officer at department and national conventions, and has frequently been placed at the head of important committees by both state and national encampments.

A SHATTERED AMBITION.

A Drummer Boy Called on to Show His Credentials.

Detroit, Aug. 6.—There was an extraordinary and according to many an unprecedented scene at last night's reunion of the Seventh Michigan Infantry, when Major Robert H. Hendershot, known to Grand Army history as "The Drummer Boy of the Rappahannock" was called upon to prove to the satisfaction of the regiment that he had really crossed with the Seventh.

General Alger was among those present. Hendershot produced letters supporting his claim from Lincoln, Burnside, Grant, Horace Greeley and others, but on being put through a vigorous cross examination he became greatly confused.

In response to a call a score of comrades from Massachusetts, Maine and other states rose to their feet and facing Hendershot, declared that they had not seen him on Dec. 11, 1862, when the regiment crossed the bridge.

The scene was dramatic in the extreme and finally it was decided that the drummer boy title properly belonged to John T. Spillane, a police officer of Detroit.

OHIO'S TIN-CLAD NAPOLEON.

He Drops Himself Into the Harrison Camp.

Blaine Men in the Buckeye State Can Write It Down In Their Little Red Books.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The announcement that reaches Washington by the way of Pittsburg that Major McKinley has openly proclaimed himself in favor of Mr. Harrison's renomination causes genuine surprise here.

Not because it is not believed that Mr. McKinley is for Harrison as against anybody except himself but because from a political point of view it is considered an egregious blunder.

At a time when the Blaine sentiment is running so high and the opposition to the president seems ready to follow where the white plume waves, McKinley's action in blindly throwing himself into the Harrison camp is utterly incomprehensible.

Of course McKinley has no love for Blaine after the shaft the latter shot into his tariff bill when he delivered that famous criticism which echoed from ocean to ocean that "there was not a line or section in the bill which would give to the American farmer a market for another barrel of pork or bushel of wheat."

That was the most severe drubbing the McKinley bill received and the major never forgave Blaine for it. McKinley in turn opposed Blaine's reciprocity scheme with all the energy he possessed.

The two statesmen were also antagonistic to each other on many questions of party policy during the last congress, notably the expediency of the force bill, which was pressed with such persistency by Harrison and the radicals.

It was not to be expected, therefore, that McKinley would look with equanimity on the Blaine boom, but in a desparate fight such as the one between the followers of Harrison and Blaine promises to be, nobody here imagined that McKinley would have the boldness to openly join the Harrison procession.

McKinley is cold, calculating and above all cautious and self-seeking. He has always been very careful heretofore about openly antagonizing anybody.

It is rather remarkable that simultaneously with McKinley's announcement that he is for Harrison the New York Herald intimates that Mr. Blaine has no sympathy with the protective tariff idea as expressed in the McKinley bill and covertly desires the defeat of its acknowledged champion.

Perhaps McKinley and Blaine have exchanged confidences. It is believed here that McKinley's announcement of his preference for Harrison will materially change the lines of the fight of the republican leaders in Ohio.

Blaine has a very strong following in the state and his strongest champion is Foraker, who has been fighting the Sherman-Foster-McKinley combine single handed.

On the other hand Harrison is decidedly unpopular. His accession to the Sherman-Foster-McKinley alliance would only weaken it, while the reinforcement of Foraker, with the moral support of Blaine, would give him a power sufficient to sweep the quadruple alliance against him into Lake Erie.

McKinley's indorsement of Harrison's candidacy, it is believed here, is not unlikely to prove a fatal blunder.

DUMPED IN THE DITCH.

A Bad Accident to a Train in Michigan.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 7.—The Grand Rapids & Indiana express bound south was wrecked three miles south of this place yesterday noon, evidently by train wreckers, as spikes, bolts and nuts were found withdrawn from the rail.

The baggage and express car, day coach and sleeper were thrown from the track and rolled down the embankment, the sleeper turning completely over and badly wrecked. Nearly all the injured, 12 in number, were taken from the sleeper, none of whom were fatally hurt, however.

The list of injured is as follows: Mrs. Myra Ripton, Kalamazoo; W. S. Bratt, Grand Rapids; Luther Waterman, Lowell; T. C. Phelps, Homantown; Henry G. Dykehouse, Grand Rapids; A. Conway, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Miss Maud Haynes, Plainwell, Mich.; M. B. Williamson, Trenton, N. J.; Mrs. J. Earlkey, Grand Rapids; C. L. Holmes, Appleton, Wis.; H. H. Smith, Mackinaw, Mich.; C. A. Shellman, Baltimore, Md. Several are seriously injured, one or two may die. The injured are being cared for at Borgess hospital, this city.

The engineer says the rails appeared like an open switch, and he immediately applied the brakes, but too late. The section foreman had inspected the track but an hour before and found everything all right.

A Notable Golden Wedding.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 6.—An event of this week will be the celebration of the golden wedding of John and Isabella Beecher-Hooker Wednesday afternoon. Nearly two thousand invitations have been sent out to people in this country and Europe.

HILL IS NOT A FACTOR.

Tammany is Not in Love With the Senator.

A Western Democrat Talks on the Situation.

Grover Cleveland Stands the Best Show of Receiving the Nomination Next Year.

Washington, Aug. 6.—A very prominent democratic politician from a Western state, who, for reasons of his own, does not care to have his identity disclosed, is at present in Washington on his way home, after a sojourn of three weeks in New York state. He talked freely regarding the political situation in New York state. He was very emphatic in the belief that the New York delegation to the next national convention would be in favor of Cleveland's nomination. He thought that Hill would cease to be of importance when he took his seat in the Senate. Without attempting to quote his exact words, the ideas of the Western democrat are hereby recorded.

Unless present indications and existing conditions are badly upset during the next nine or ten months the state of New York will send a Cleveland delegation to the next national convention. Cleveland's friends in New York are of the solid and substantial rather than of the noisey order.

The influential men in the party are friends of the ex-President, and believe that his nomination for the presidency again is essential to democratic success.

Mr. Cleveland himself, from all accounts, is not worrying about the presidency, and his friends declare that he will hardly turn his hand over either for the nomination or for the election; but they also declare that Mr. Cleveland is in the hands of his party and that if it is the desire of the party that he should again be a candidate he will accept.

There is no doubt that Governor Hill is extremely anxious to obtain the presidential nomination; that he is plotting and scheming constantly to retain his hold on the democratic machine, and that his agents and strikers are constantly going through the state working up his boom.

The Hill people depend much upon the support of Tammany Hall, for without the support of Tammany it would be difficult for any New Yorker to have a majority of the delegates from the Empire state to the national convention. It was Hill's scheme to have the support of Tammany and Kings county in the state convention and pick up a few scattering districts through the state, and in that way secure a majority of the delegates to the national convention.

There is some reason to believe that Mr. Hill will not be able to carry out his plans. There are indications that Tammany Hall is tired of Hill and that the astute leaders of that organization are becoming convinced that the best way to retain popular confidence is to come to the support of the ex-President. The Tammany leaders always distrusted David and David in turn thought himself smart enough to hoodwink and humbug Tammanyites.

David is smart; scheming is his trade and making deals is his chief accomplishment, but he is not smart enough for the Tammany men.

It is true Tammany is not very much in love with Cleveland, but it is equally certain that they are convinced of Cleveland's honesty.

They will always know where to find him, and when he tells them anything they can rely upon it. Not so with Hill. They cannot believe the governor; they cannot trust him, and they have no confidence in his honesty.

It has been heralded all over the country from time to time that Hill was dead sure of the support of New York in the national convention. It is about time that this delusion was swept away. Hill tried to form an alliance with Gray of Indiana, and has been working night and day since the defeat of Mr. Cleveland in the fall of 1888 to arrange matters so that he could control the New York delegation to the national convention, and that Gray could control the Indiana delegation; then with the two doubtful states clamoring for the nomination of Hill and Gray he supposed that the rest of the country would be forced to acquiesce, no matter how discomforting the dose would be.

In dealing with Gray, however, Hill found a politician of his own stripe. Gray can see as far into the future as Hill and can measure public sentiment just as accurately. Gray discovered long ago that Hill was a presidential impossibility; that even with the support of New York it would be almost impossible to get the support of the other states for him in the national convention; consequently Gray dissolved partnership, or rather declined Hill's proffer of a partnership.

Gray is aware that his only hope of being nominated for the vice-presidency is on a ticket with Cleveland, and that to antagonize Cleveland in the interest of Hill would be fatal to his ambition.

Like most other unscrupulous men who pretend to be excessively smart, Hill frequently overreaches himself. This he did when he promised the senatorship to Smith M. Weed and then arranged the wires so as to secure it for himself, and at the same time hold on to the governorship. The selfishness which prompted him to hold the two offices himself disgusted many who were previously his friends, but who were inclined to tolerate him. New York is rich in democrats of ability and ambition, and it is easy to see that the hogging qualities of the governor in trying to center everything in his own person had an ugly influence on other democratic leaders.

It was Hill's aim for a time to arrange matters so as to secure his own renomination for the governorship. He brought out Flower, or rather encouraged Flower to seek the gubernatorial nomination.

He was friendly with Mayor Chapin of Brooklyn, whom he encouraged also, and it is understood that other men throughout the state also received friendly hints from him that if they entered the race for the governorship they could have his support.

His object was to get four or five men into the contest, have a big row in the convention and then nominate himself as the general harmonizer. This scheme has failed. In all probability Mr. Flower will be nominated for governor, and Hill can not own him.

Chapin, Flower, Weed and even Hill's long-time friend Edward Murphy of Troy, the chairman of the state committee, are well aware that Hill tried to humbug them all, and it is hardly necessary to say that Hill is not strengthened thereby.

Hill also tried to humbug the liquor men and for a time succeeded. He not only promised to veto legislation detrimental to them, but pledged himself to secure the passage of certain legislation that they desired. He kept a part of his promise; he vetoed certain measures at the demand of the liquor element, but he used his influence against the passage of certain bills that the liquor interests desired.

In offending the liquor element Hill made, perhaps, his greatest mistake, as the support of the liquor people has been Hill's main strength so far. The brewers were assessed in his interest, so were the saloonkeepers and the coopers who made the kegs and barrels for the brewers, the commission merchants who furnished grain to the brewers and every other element directly or indirectly associated with the liquor or brewing industry.

The brewers and whisky dealers, who would support him for governor because they needed a man friendly to them in the executive office of the state, would not support him for president, because as president he would not be useful to them. Consequently, in reaching out for the presidency, Hill will not have the assistance of the beer and whisky men; they will be looking out for the New York governor and not for the president of the United States.

Hill's machine is entirely personal and selfish. It is maintained by the patronage of the state government and the veto power in the hands of the governor. Hill exerted the veto in his own interest more unscrupulously than any man who ever held the office of chief executive of a state.

When he steps out of the capital at Albany to come to Washington his power will cease. His machine will fall to pieces, and whoever succeeds him in the governor's chair will have more influence than Hill. When Hill enters the senate chamber the country will have an opportunity to measure his size. When he comes to be compared with men like Carlisle, Vest, Gorman, Morgan, Gray, Blackburn, Palmer, Vilas and Kenna his stature will appear rather limited. Hill is a smart politician in New York state. He knows very little about national politics. There are 60 men in the senate stronger intellectually than Hill, and it is my opinion that as a national legislator he will be a great disappointment to those who expect anything from him. When he solemnly recommended a couple of years ago that ex-presidents should be made life senators he adequately measured his mentality, democracy and intelligence. Look out for more breaks of that kind when he comes to Washington.

A BALDHEADED ANARCHIST.

The People's Party Not Well Treated in Kentucky.

Lecturer Lloyd Says Both the Old Parties Combined to Down the New One.

Boston, Aug. 6.—Mr. Harry Lloyd, the missionary lecturer from the people's party committee of this state, returned yesterday from Kentucky.

He was apparently in good health, though he says that he has lost his voice from the strain of daily open air addresses.

He still wears his scalp, but he is wondering over his good fortune, for he says he was greeted as "a bald-headed anarchist," and that both of the old parties did all they could to suppress him.

They are fighting each other, but they united, as he says, to drive the intruding party out of the field. Both democrats and republicans prefer the success of either to the uprising of the antagonist of both, and personally the candidates of both parties are on friendly terms.

When the democratic candidate, Hon. John Young Brown, is in the town where Maj. Wood, the republican candidate, lives, he stops at the major's house, and the major is likewise welcomed to the house of Mr. Brown.

"When I went to Lexington," says Mr. Lloyd, "both parties tried to prevent me having the use of the court house, but I succeeded in getting it just one hour before the advertised time for the meeting.

"It is a habit in Kentucky to ring up an audience with a bell, and I had the court house bell rung by the janitor, as if there was a fire. When he fell back tired out, I hired a young fellow to ring the hour out. Him should have seen how the crowd turned out of their houses. We soon had the court house filled, and a mass of people on the outside, fully 4,000 in all.

"Gen. Watt Harding, attorney general of the state, was there, and I offered to divide the time with him for a joint debate, but he refused. So I went ahead alone, and got plenty of applause.

"But Congressman Breckinridge, the most eloquent speaker of Kentucky, was on the stump night and day denouncing our new party as anarchists at Hartford, and, in common with other speakers, calling upon the people to vote with the republicans if the clerk were not willing to vote the straight democratic ticket.

"I spoke at Lexington, Covington, Paducah, Paris and other cities, but outside Lexington I had the largest audiences in the country districts. The farmers heard me willingly, but in the cities I began to be afraid for my life. I am no intending martyr, and if I had known what risk I was going to run in the Kentucky towns, I should have stayed outside.

"I did not find any lack of intelligence in the agricultural districts, but there is, in no doubt, a colossal weight of illiteracy. In some counties round Lexington there was not one schoolhouse, as I was informed by Dennis O'Reilly, an old-time democrat and a man of property in Lexington.

"Beside myself, there were actively speaking in the state for the people's party, Robert Schelling of Milwaukee, Wis.; M. W. Wilkins, a Kansas man, and H. E. Taubeneck, of Marshall, Ill., the one alliance man who held out and refused to vote for Palmer as senator. There were other speakers from the state itself, and we made considerable stir. But the organization was very poor, and W. Irwin, the people's party nominee for governor, was a bad selection. Broadsides were fired at him on the ground of personal character, with no sufficient answer.

"In Ohio our prospects are much better, and we shall draw heavily from the farming districts, taking most from the republicans. Hamilton county ought to give us 15,000, and I look for a vote of 120,000 in the state at large."

DIVIDED ON THE SKIRTS.

Dress Reform Receiving a Boom in the East.

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 6.—A great dress reform movement is about to be inaugurated in the United States, which will be concerted and comprehensive.

The leader has just been found in the person of Mrs. Frank Stewart Parker, of Chicago, who bravely nailed her dress reform thesis against the gates of Chautauqua about a week ago, and has since that time been receiving delegations of women from all over the country.

The women interested have just selected as a central committee the following prominent women: Mrs. Frank Stewart Parker, Chicago; Mrs. Frances E. Russell, St. Paul, Minn.; Annie Jenness Miller, New York; Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Anna C. Brackett, Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi, Miss Grace Dodge and Margaret Sangster.

Chautauqua has four styles of dress, namely, the "no skirt," "the old skirts," "the divided skirts" and the "apology for skirts" (or trouserettes). Miss Frances Willard has wheeled the whole National Temperance union into line in support of the movement. In her very bright address here Saturday she made some striking and suggestive remarks.

THE LETTER CARRIERS.

Third Annual Convention in Detroit.

Two Hundred Delegates Present From All Parts of the United States.

Detroit, Aug. 6.—The third annual convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers of the United Saates was called to order in the Odd Fellows' temple yesterday by President John J. Goodwin, of Providence, R. I.

Two hundred delegates representing 41 states and territories handed in their credentials.

In his opening address President Goodwin congratulated the delegates upon the phenomenal growth of the organization. A year ago, he said, but 53 branches were represented at Boston. To-day there were 235.

A special committee appointed last year submitted a plan for an insurance branch on the assessment principle providing for death benefits of $3,000 and $1,500 to widows or other heirs of deceased members, and the convention proceeded to discuss the project.

Bismarck Would Have Prevented It.

Paris, Aug. 6.—Figaro publishes a letter alleged to have been written by Bismarck saying that the visit of the French fleet to Constadt would not have occurred had he been in power. It was the result of three blunders, the visit of the Empress Frederick to Paris, the Kaiser's noisy visit to London, and the renewal of the dreibund.

THE CARBONIFEROUS AGE

A Weird Noctural Vampire Discovered.

It Has Sent Terror Into the Hearts of Many.

A Pair of Fearful Monsters in California — Neither Fish, Flesh, Nor Fowl, but a Combination of All.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 6.—A number of persons living in the vicinity of Reedley, Fresno county, Cal., all reputable citizens, too, according to a Chronicle correspondent, swear that they have seen and hunted two dragons with wings 15 feet long, bodies without covering of hair or feathers, head broad, bills long and wide, eyes not less than four inches in diameter and with feet like those of an alligator, somewhat, though more circular in form.

They had five toes on each foot, with a strong claw on each, and its track is 11 inches wide and 19 inches long. These strange creatures were first seen southeast of Selma, on the night of July 11, and their peculiar cries and the rushing of their mammoth wings was heard as late as 10 o'clock, when all became still. The dragons were last heard that night crying in the direction of King's river.

Two nights later A. K. Simmons' poultry yard was visited by the monsters, many of the hens being bitten in two and left partly devoured. Those who examined the dead chickens say the teeth marks on them resemble those made by a very large dog. On July 19 a carriage loaded with picnickers was returning from a picnic at Clark's Bridge, and in the clear moonlight saw the monsters plainly circling in the air and heard the rush of their pinions, snapping of their jaws and fearful cries overhead.

On Monday, July 21, Harvey Lemon and Maj. Henry Haight, who live just outside of Selma, going after their hogs, who fed on the Tules, hearing a strangling noise in the deep swale under a bridge, and in a moment, with a heavy flapping of wings, the queer creatures rose slowly from the water, flying so close to the men that the wind from the tremendous wings was plainly felt. Their description of the monsters tallies with that of the persons who saw them on the 13th and 19th.

J. D. Daniels, of Sanger, heard of the matter and joined the party of five that were going out to capture or kill the dragons, and he tells the following story after reporting that their first night's watch at Hog Lake was a disappointment.

About 10 o'clock that day (Thursday) Emanuel Jacobs came in and reported that the monsters had evidently been in Horn Valley, about four miles above, the night before. They had killed a number of ducks, and the banks of the pond were strewn with feathers. We had no intention of giving over the plan of capturing the dragons, and Thursday night two of us returned to watch, Mr. Templeton and myself.

"We secreted ourselves in the holes which we had made the night before and waited patiently with our guns, determined to secure one of the strange visitors at least, should they make their appearance. About 11 o'clock the cries were heard in the direction of King river, seeming two or three miles away.

"The ominous yells drew nearer and in a few moments we heard the rush and roar of wings, so hideous that our hair almost stood on end. The two dragons came swooping down and circled round and round the pond in rapid whirls, screaming hideously all the while. We had a good view of them while flying, two or three times.

"They passed within a few yards of us and their eyes were plainly visible. We could also see that, instead of bills like birds, they had snouts resembling that of the alligator, and their teeth could be seen as they snapped their jaws, while passing. Evidently the dragons were trying to decide whether or not they should come down in the pond.

"They would doubtless, examining if there was any food to be had, such as ducks, muduens and fish. At length they came down with a fearful plunge into the pond, and the mud and water flew as though a tree had fallen into it. They dived around in the water and, as nearly as we could judge at the distance of thirty yards they were something over six feet long, and while wading through the water they looked not unlike gigantic frogs. Their wings were folded and looked like large knobs on their backs.

"Their eyes were the most visible parts and seemed all the time wide open and staring. They were very active and darted about among the tules and rushes catching mudhens. One of these fowls was devoured at two or three chomps of the jaws.

"As soon as we saw a good opportunity we leveled our guns at the one nearest us and fired. One rose in the air yelled and flew away. Every stroke of the wing showed great strength. The other floundered about in the water until it reached the edge of the pond, when it crawled out, dragging along its wounded wing after it, and started across the plain. We loaded our guns and gave chase. We soon lost sight of it, for it went much faster than we could. However, we were able to follow by its dismal cries in the distance.

"We followed it half a mile, when it passed out of our hearing. The next day a company went in pursuit and trailed it by the blood on the grass. It was followed three miles to the Jumper Slough, which it entered, and all trace of it was lost. Where it passed down the bank it left several well-formed tracks in the mud. One of the best was cut out with a spade, and after drying was taken to Selma, where it is the possession of Mr. Snodgrass."

The most probable solution of the matter is that those dragons are solitary specimens of some geological animal supposed to be extinct. It tallies most nearly with the description of the pterodactyl, a weird, nocturnal vampire, half bird, half lizard, that infested the vast swamps of the earth in the carboniferous age.

The pterodactyl is described by geologists as attaining a size often four times as large as the eagle, while the bill became a snout and its mouth was set with ghastly teeth, and it devoured birds, reptiles and all small animals that came in its way. It may be that this species of animals has not become entirely extinct as has been supposed, but that these are veritable pterodactyles.

It may be possible that in the immense sultry and miasmal swamps surrounding Lake Tulare these hideous monsters have survived the destruction of all their kindred and have come down to the present day.

There are places in that vast expanse of swamps bordering the lake on which no human being ever set foot.

The Tules grow a perfect wilderness and they may have furnished a refuge for these hideous things until the present day. The search for the monsters will be carefully carried on, and the hunters believe that ere many days they will secure this wounded mammoth bat-lizard, which is creating no end of talk among the scientists of California to-day.

Always avoid harsh purgative pills. They first make you sick and then leave you constipated. Carter's Little Liver Pills regulate the bowels and make you well. Dose, one pill.

REPUDIATES HIS PARTY.

Ex-Congressman Kelly No Longer a Republican.

Topeka, Ks., Aug. 6.—A letter from Harrison Kelly, ex-congressman from this district, in which he renounces the republican party and declares that in the future he will be found fighting with Peffer, Polk and Simpson, has created more talk in political circles than any event of the kind in the past few months.

Mr. Kelly's letter was in response to a communication from Major Hudson, editor of the Topeka capital, requesting him to deny a statement published in a people's party paper concerning his political faith.

Mr. Kelly says he has turned to the new party—the People's party—as the best medium through which to accomplish the reforms demanded by the people.

Favoring their measures and believing their enactment would result in great benefit to the people, and both the old parties having rejected them, he thinks the logical thing to do is to support the party that favors them.

Desperate Attempt at Suicide.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 6.—Jack Frost, aged about 28, of Anderson, England, stabbed himself in the throat with a pair of pliers, ripped open his abdomen and then jumped out of a third story window at the hotel Carson in Allegheny, about noon today. His recovery is improbable.

Frost came from England about six months ago. He has been working for the Allegheny electric light company but was dismissed Saturday and has been drinking heavily since.

Fatally Burned.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 6.—While several laborers were moving a buggy of molten metal from the furance to the mold, at Shoenberger's mill on Sixteenth street this morning, it exploded, fatally burning Frank Kalisu and seriously injuring two other Polish laborers whose names could not be learned. Water dripped from the waste pipe onto the metal causing the explosion.

Commissioner of Immigration.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Acting Secretary Netteton to-day appointed John J. S. Rogers, of Philadelphia, commissioner of immigration at Philadelphia.

Mrs. Rogers has for years been connected with immigration matters at Philadelphia, and when the state board of immigration was abolished was its president.

Presidential Appointments.

Cape May, N. J., Aug. 6.—The president has appointed John W. Hyne of Michigan, consul at Amberstbuz, Ont.; Charles C. Belknap, postmaster at Portersville, Col.; Horace L. Swift, postmaster at Wallace, Idaho.

Minister to Greece A. Louden Snowden and Civil Service Commissioner Lyman called at the shore capital this morning.

A BATTLE WITH MUSKRATS

A Young Fisherman's Desperate Fight.

They Were Too Much for Him and He Was Obliged to Seek Safety in Flight.

Cincinnati, Aug. 6.—Samuel Loftus, a farmer youth living near Lawrenceburg, had a terrible encounter with muskrats. They swarmed over his body and bit him savagely on the face, neck and limbs.

Finally, bleeding from a score of wounds, the young man took to his heels and this alone saved his life. As it is his head and limbs are swollen to an astonishing degree and blood-poisoning threatens to complete the work of the ferocious water rats.

Young Loftus spent last Friday on the banks of Hogan creek, fishing. He was not very successful, and as the sun dropped down in the west he laid the two fish he had caught on the bank and meandered up the creek. He returned in a short time only to discover that the fish were gone.

Samuel was angered at this and he made up his mind to find those fish if they were anywhere in the neighborhood. Finally he saw the tail of one of the fish protruding from beneath a ledge of rock just at the water's edge.

Loftus at once began to tear away the rock and earth from above the fish, when to his surprise he discovered a nest of muskrats nearly full grown. The young rodents had pulled the fish into their hole as far as their size would permit and had begun to make a meal of them.

When Loftus broke into their hiding place the baby rats began to squeal in fright, and the cries atracted the attention of the parent rats, who were in the neighborhood. With screams the little animals, anxious to save their young, attacked the farmer, snapping with their long, sharp teeth at his hands and arms. Their cries atracted other rats near by, and from a dozen nests came answering cries that foretold a united attack on the common enemy.

Before Loftus could realize his danger the fierce little animals were all on him, biting his face, neck and limbs. The farmer yelled with pain, and struck, stamped and kicked at the rats, but they hung on like so many bulldogs until he was bleeding from a score of wounds.

Faint from fright and loss of blood the young farmer knew that his only hope was in flight, and with a dozen of the fierce assailants still clinging to him he staggered down the stream, leaving the little animals victors of the field. Loftus killed many of the rats in his desperate fight, but when one fell another took its place. As if by instinct they sought to bite his throat, and it was only by shielding this vital portion of his body at the expense of his hands and arms that Loftus got away alive.

After the battle the farmer walked to his home, four miles away, and though badly bitten all over his face and body, refused to see a physician. Next day, however, he was terribly swollen and his eyes were closed by the bites around them. Symptoms of blood-poisoning were very apparent, and a doctor was sent for at once. Loftus will not be able to leave his room for many days, even though the deadly blood-poisoning be conquered, which is yet a matter of doubt.

The Steamer Burt.

The steamer Wellington R. Burt, which will commence running between Toledo and Perrysburg next Saturday, as mentioned in yesterday's BEE, was looked over by the inspectors of this district and everything found to be in good shape.

The Burt is a sidewheel steamer, considerably larger than the Wallace, which is now on the route, and is licensed to carry 600 passengers, which load will not crowd her in the least. She draws four feet of water and people of Maumee are making a big effort to have the steamer also land on their side of the river.

In Toledo the Burt will use the marine building wharf at the foot of Jefferson street, and she will probably become a fixture in this port. The steamer is commanded by Capt. D. M. Pierce, of Bay City, who is an able steamboatman and a genial gentleman.

Parker Released.

The coal laden schooner B. W. Parker which has been aground at Turtle Light since Monday night, was released by the tug Schenck this morning.

Helena to be Raised.

Chicago, August 6.—The underwriters interested in the sunken barge Helena and represented by W. D. Robinson, of Buffalo; David Vance, of Milwaukee, and James Kellogg and C. A. McDonald, of Chicago, have closed a contract with H. McMorran, of Port Huron, to raise the Helena and deliver boat and cargo at dry-dock. The price for the work was about $8,000. The Helena is sunk in Little Mud Lake, in the Sno river.

The Lake Superior steamer Jay Gould and the steel steamer Mariska were libeled in the United States District Court yesterday for the loss of the Helena in the sum of $35,000.

It is alleged that the Helena was going up St. Mary's river July 25 in tow of the steamer Revena. The Jay Gould, also upbound, attempted to pass her, throwing her nearly broadside across the channel. The Mariska, coming down, struck the boat a solid blow in the bow, while the Gould collided with her stern.

The Helena is owned by the Orient Transportation company of Rockford, O., and is represented by Harvey D. Goulder, Cleveland, and C. E. Kremer, of Chicago. The Jay Gould was bonded out late in the afternoon.

Buffalo, Aug. 6.—The schooner Sage, which was released from Hammond's bay, was towed to Mulls' shipyard for repairs. She is to be changed into a three-masted grain and ore barge. It was thought the work could be done in a month.

A Very Short Strike.

Ashtabula, Aug. 6.—The strike which which was thought to be settled six weeks ago was recommenced yesterday to get the old price, 10 cents, a ton for unloading. The strike only lasted 15 minutes. The dock companies decided to pay the men the price they asked and they returned to work.

TURTLE DOVES ARRESTED

A Girl Who Eloped With Her Lover.

They Traveled as Brother and Sister and Her Only Desire Was to Get Away from Home.

Indianapolis, Aug. 6.—Lizzie Hoover, aged 17, and Ardie Buck, aged 18, were arrested here to-day on an order from Shamokin, Pa.

Lizzie admitted that she eloped. She said she loved Ardie and her parents made it so disagreeable at home that she couldn't stand it. She had worked in her father's office and saved some money.

"I went to Ardie," she said, "and asked him if he would go away with me, telling him I would pay all expenses. It didn't take very much coaxing, and so I told my parents that I was going to visit some relatives. We went to Columbus, O., and stayed there quite a little while, and then came here about a week ago. We traveled as brother and sister and have been guilty of no wrong save that of running away. I won't go back home and be abused as I was before if they keep me in jail ever so long."

Miss Hoover gives every evidence of having come from a cultivated home. Her father has telegraphed that he will come at once.

Kentucky Vote.

Louisville, Aug. 6.—Returns on the election of Monday from 95 out of 119 counties show no considerable change from the estimates sent in. The new constitution has carried by 75,000 to 100,000, the democratic majority is 25,000; the people's vote, 10,000 or less. The senate will stand: Democrats, 27; republicans, 10; people's, 1. The house: Democrats, 69; republicans, 17; people's, 12; independent democrat, 1. Many democrats are farmers in sympathy with the alliance.

THE ASHLEY INVESTIGATION.

Proposition to Arbitrate Made by the Defense.

The Ashley tax investigation is at a standstill. The auditor thus far has been given no opportunity to investigate the governor's financial movements.

Counsel for Mr. Ashley have experienced a desire to have the matter submitted to a board of arbitration for judgment. This proposition was referred to Mr. Morgan Thaler.

Gov. Ashley left for New York City late last night.

FIXING UP THE PRICE.

Rolling Mill Directors and Gas Trustees Consult

As to Figures for the Coming Season—An Amicable Arrangement Probable.

S. C. Reynolds, H. S. Walbridge, Geo. W. Davis and Manager Borts, of the Maumee rolling mills, appeared before the board of natural gas trustees yesterday afternoon relative to a new contract for gas. The gentlemen presented their side of the case, setting forth the fact that the company was now paying $1.50 per gross ton, but could not afford to pay more than $1 hereafter. It had come to the point where the company would be either obliged to secure cheaper gas or to close down the mills.

Quite a lengthy discussion ensued, in which the members and the directors of the rolling mills permiscuously participated.

Dr. Jones said that gas at $1 per gross ton meant gas at a cent and a half per 1,000 cubic feet.

Mr. Walbridge pointed out the facts that the iron mills in the gas regions were securing fuel at rates so much cheaper that it would be impossible for his company to compete with them in price.

Mr. Clarence Brown asked if the use of oil as a fuel had not proved successful.

Manager Borts replied that it had only been partially so. The institution was too large to have a plant of sufficient capacity to turn oil into gas in the necessary quantity.

Mr. Brown said he remembered the trustees offering the Rolling Mill people a contract good for five years at satisfactory price and that the offer was rejected on the grounds that First, the oil was more economical, and, Second, that the city had no gas to supply. He was glad to see that the directors had changed their opinion on the matter.

After some further discussion Mr. Backus moved that the contract be entered into with the rolling mills on the terms set forth. He favored making the contract on the ground that the institution was a Toledo one and that the company could not afford to pay more.

Mr. Parsons seconded the motion, but it had not come to a vote, and further action was postponed until a meeting to be held this evening when it is believed a contract can be made.

Speaking with a BEE this morning Mr. Walbridge said the mills, under the old contract with the Northwestern, had paid $1.70 a ton and under the present contract by the city $1.50 a ton. They could not afford to pay more than $1. It had come to the question, whether the mills should close and go elsewhere or get gas for $1 a ton.

BARN BURNED.

A Hancock County Farmer Loses His Crops.

Findlay, O., Aug. 6.—(special)—The large frame barn of Jacob Cramer, four miles west of the city, was burned to the ground with all its valuable contents, consisting of seven hundred bushels of wheat, twenty four tons of hay, harness, wagons, etc., at 3 o'clock this a. m.

Loss over $3,000 and only partially insured.

The live stock was all rescued from the burning building. The origin of the fire is a profound mystery.

ABOUT OHIO CROPS.

Wheat Below the Average on the Bottom Lands.

The Grain Not Plump But Better Than Expected in the Upland Counties.

Columbus, Aug. 6.—The report of the Ohio state board of agriculture on the condition and prospects of crops, August 1, 1891, contains the following information on the important subject. The percentage of estimates of the condition or prospects of crops of August 1, 1891, are given as compared with a full average yield or condition.

Wheat, condition 97 per cent.; oats, condition 83 per cent.; barley, condition 95 per cent.; timothy, condition 91 per cent.; potatoes, condition 98 per cent.; tobacco, condition 91 per cent.; pastures, condition 95 per cent.; apples, condition 60 per cent.; peaches, condition 50 per cent., pears, condition 60 per cent.; grapes, condition 65 per cent.

Since the last report on condition of wheat it has gone into the shock in good condition and the weather has been generally favorable for threshing. So far as reports have been received from those who have threshed we are convinced that the crop will bear out our former estimate. The wheat on upland is yielding better than was expected, while much on bottom land is falling below the estimate. The grain is not plump and heads not well filled. These conditions are peculiar to wheat which was headed out at the time of the May frosts.

The weather during July has been favorable for harvesting, but has been too cool for corn which will be late. The color is good and it is earing well. With favorable weather the crop will be a full average.

The southwestern Ohio oats have been damaged by rust. In northern and central Ohio the crop is good and promises abundantly compared with the early outlook.

The timothy was secured in good condition and the yield is above the estimate made in June.

Clover hay is not so good, as most of it was weedy, and was cut too late because of wet weather.

Tobacco is very promising and exceptionally free from damage by worms.

Potatoes are abundant and the quality good. In some districts they have been damaged by scab.

Apples are very unevenly distributed, some districts having very few while others have abundance.

Peaches are scattering also and pears are not up to the average.

Where grapes were frosted a second crop has started in some places, but these are more subject to rot and cannot be counted on to escape frost.

Contrasted with those of 1890 the crops of 1891 rejoice the hearts of the husbandmen and give promise of plenty for home consumption with a fair surplus for export.

Woodville Items.

Woodville, Aug. 6.—(Special)—Woodville had one of the very best and grandest celebrations last week that ever was in this part of the state. It was in commemoration of the glories of old Fort Stevenson.

Ex Senator Zimmerman, of Fremont, and Senator John N. Sonerant, of Sandusky City, were here to grace the speaker's stand.

All the speaking was good. The oration of the day, delivered by C. C. Layman, was very appropriate to the occasion and purpose.

Mrs. George Cronenwett is still slowly improving. As soon as she is able she expects to go to Ashland to visit her daughter.

The farmers are reaping an immense harvest this summer and they feel jubilant over their fine crops.

Toledo Hotels Had a Whack.

Every night this week Toledo hotels were well filled with visitors going to and returning from Detroit, who preferred a good night's rest. Last evening there was pretty near a jam, and all had their full complement. The Burnett was compelled to use all the cots on hand, and three 'bus loads of passengers were turned away.

James J. Coffee's Death.

James J. Coffee, son of Mr. Patrick Coffee, of Sumner street and nephew of Mr. Michael Wallace of Canton avenue, breathed his last at the family residence on Wednesday morning. The young man, who was highly esteemed, was only 19 years old, and as this is the seventh child that the family have lost, they have the sympathy of all. The funeral will take place on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock from Father McCarthy's church, of which he was a faithful member. The deceased held many positions of trust in the Lake Shore offices, and most of his fellow workers, by whom he was highly respected, will attend his funeral, when the solemn mass of requiem for the repose of his soul will be celebrated by Father McCarthy.

"Enthusiastic" Meeting in the Third Ward.

A drumming up for a week in the local republican papers had the effect of bringing together last night just ten of the faithful to the court house, where a new club was to be formed. There is a screw loose somewhere, since it has been supposed there was a republican club in the ward, of which Robert Locke was president. However, some lively talk was indulged in, ending in voting out of existence the old club, and the election of officers as follows: President, W. A. Mills; Vice-President, T. W. Wheeler; Secretary, H. W. Wilhelm; Treasurer, F. A Kumler; Executive Committee, S. S. Bensten, R. R. Reynolds, L. W. Morris, C. H. Jones, J. J. Robison, Arthur Eassaway.

Meetings are to be held monthly on the first Wednesday. Last night's action will have the effect of adding to the harmony already existing among local republicans. The work of the "ten in council" is roundly censured.

I. O. G. T. Notes.

The lodges in the Fifth District are all booming.

Walbridge Lodge gave an ice cream social Tuesday evening which was well attended, and a good time was reported by all present.

They gained 24 members the past quarter and expect to do better this quarter. Next Friday evening a "Hard-time Social" will be given at the residence of Mrs. R. S. Clegg, on Second street, everybody is invited to partake of refreshments, ice cream and cake, and enjoy the festivities of the evening.

The Odd Fellows' Encampment.

The committees in charge of the Old Fellows' encampment, which is to be held at Presque Isle, are laboring earnestly to make the same a success. In connection with the encampment, there will be a grand parade, which is expected to be an immense affair. Gen. J. W. Greene has been chosen as grand marshal for the occasion. The line of march as determined upon now is from the temple on Erie, to Monroe, to Summit, to Walnut, to Superior, to Madison, to Seventeenth, to Jefferson, and then to the temple, when the parade will disband, the patriarchs militant returning to Presque Isle. The parade will be reviewed by Gen. Whitaker and staff, and the judges of the prize drill, Col. H. S. Bunker, Capt. W. V. McMaken and Capt. G. U. Roulet. The prizes offered by the local committee are sufficient to warrant entries by crack companies, many of whom have already signified their intention to be present. Toledo will cordially welcome her visitors.

Death of Samuel A. Taylor.

Among the older residents of Toledo who passed away yesterday was Mr. Samuel A. Taylor, who has been a resident since the close of the war. The deceased enlisted in the One Hundred and Twenty-eighth Ohio volunteers at Bellevue, where also he was married. For some time he was stationed at Johnson's island, and later went with his regiment to the front. His family had in the meantime removed to Sandusky, to which place he returned when mustered out of the service. Shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Taylor came to Toledo, and have since resided here. Mr. Taylor was for over twenty years in the employ of the Lake Shore road at this point, and was well and favorably known. For six months the deceased has been a patient sufferer, the cause of death being softening of the brain. Funeral occurs to-morrow afternoon from the late residence on lower Erie street. He leaves a widow to mourn his loss.

Once More After Lucas County.

The Cleveland Leader of this morning has the following Columbus special, which will be of interest to several Toledoans;

J. W. Roof, a member of the firm of William Edwards & company, of Cleveland, and also an officer of the Crane Creek shooting club, has written to Col. I. J. C. Schumacher and R. M. Rowsh, of the state canal commission, in regard to some land in Lucas county, the ownership of which is in dispute. The Crane Creek club purchased the land from the government in 1888. It afterwards developed that the land belonged to the state, and the general government settled with the state, paying $1.25 per acre. The Cedar Point club of Toledo, has since that time purchased 6,000 acres of the same land from the government. The question now is whether the Crane Creek club can establish its title to the land. The case is to be tried in the United States court at Toledo in October. Mr. Roof desires the commission to look up the records in order that the effort to establish the Crane Creek club's title may be facilitated.

A Sleepy Boat Load.

The steamer Idlewild, on her return trip from Detroit yesterday, left that city at 11:30 and arrived in Toledo at 4:30 this morning, just as day was breaking. She had on board a large load of passengers, and it was a tired and sleepy crowd returning from a grand celebration. Many had had but little sleep for several days, and consequently they dropped down for a nap on the steamer—in the chairs, on the floor, and anywhere that a person could stretch out full length. Cots were improvised with camp chairs, beds were made on the floor with life preservers torn from the ceiling for cushions and many slept on the hard deck. Men, women and children bunked together and caught what sleep they could. Every inch of space on the floor of the main saloon was occupied and one could not walk about with disturbing some sleeper.

Altogether the steamer presented a curious sight, and there were many spectacles for an artist.

NO HELP FROM BLAINE.

The Secretary is Opposed to McKinley.

The Man from Maine Could Never Indorse What He Calls an Infamous Bill.

Washington, May 6.—Do the Blaine republicans believe that the success of McKinley would make the tariff the overshadowing issue in 1892, and are the Blaine republicans for this reason preparing to knife the author of the tariff bill in Ohio this year?

Columbus despatches indicate that they are, and well informed politicians believe it.

Mr. McKinley more completely embodies the high tax principle than any other American, and it may be said for Mr. Blaine that in him the reciprocity idea finds its strongest and most intelligent advocate.

Mr. Blaine is bitterly antagonistic to the protective idea as it finds expression in the McKinley Tariff law. What, then more natural than that he should covertly desire the defeat of its acknowledged champion in a gubernatorial contest where tariff reform and tariff prohibition furnish the battle cries for the respective forces engaged?

Secretary Blaine called at the appropriations committee room of the senate on June 19, 1890, to discuss with Messrs. Allison, Hale and Blackburn the expenditures of his department for the following fiscal year.

The tariff bill had passed the house a few weeks previously and was then under discussion in the senate. To the surprise of his auditors Mr. Blaine vigorously denounced the measure. He characterized it as "infamous" and said that if he had been a member of the house he would have vetoed against it.

Some months later, after these facts had been given to the public, there was no further reason for concealment. Senator Blackburn gave a detailed account of the scene in the committee room and what the secretary really said. It was a much stronger indictment of the measure than had yet appeared in print, and taken in connection with the present situation in Ohio makes what the late Simon Cameron would call "mighty interesting reading."

Ex-Congressman Kelly, heretofore republican of Kansas, repudiates the g. o. p. and goes over to the alliance party. Next!

The old man of Germany continues to point out the blunders of its young emperor, and the worst thing about it for Emperor William is that when Prince Bismarck offers a criticism the German people see that it is to the point.

The New York state league of republican clubs is having a not very enthusiastic convention. Harmony reigns though hope and enthusiasm are absent, and the bossism of Mr. Platt over the affairs of the party is meekly accepted.

The western democrat who outlined Tammany's intentions for next year was wise to refuse to let his name be known. What Tammany will do next year, or at any other time, is one of the things "no feller can find out" until it is done.

The St. Louis Republic strikes out from the shoulder and down to the roots of the evil of class legislation when it says: "If there is any private business in this country that cannot exist without the levy of taxes on the people to pay bounties for its support, it must and it shall suspend."

Another wave of crime is sweeping over the country, and a record of revolting murders is being made. That three of the most atrocious murders of the week occur in New York state where but a short time ago four murderers were electrocuted will again raise the question of whether capital punishment is a deterrent of homicide.

Republican organs in accounting for the low price of Ohio wool, allege that the true reason lies in the fact that Ohio farmers do not put it up for market in proper shape. The question is, were Ohio farmers equally negligent when wool brought a high price a few years ago? This explanation is only a clumsy subterfuge. The true cause of the low price is the McKinley bill and the farmers know it.

Notwithstanding politics at home and international complications in old world countries the world's fair business is booming right along in both hemispheres. Even McKinley's tariff, which "stands like a wall across the way," to quote Butterworth once more, will not destroy the success of the exposition. This is the greater matter for congratulation inasmuch as it is the only good thing for this country the McKinley tariff interferes with without destroying it.

"A friend" of Secretary Noble explains that that gentleman's health is not good enough to permit him to remain in an office whose duties have grown irksome to him. The friend's explanation allows the inference to be drawn that this irksomeness is due to Raum's rottenness and Morgan's maliciousness. The story goes on that Noble can have the mission to England, if Lincoln will enter the cabinet, or, failing that, the mission to St. Petersburg. The public is naturally concerned to learn of Secretary Noble's heretofore unsuspected illness. The entire republican party begins to look very sick, owing to the delicate condition of health of so many of its leaders.

Will Secretary Blaine accept the nomination for president on the republican ticket in 1892? is a question anxiously pondered over by the Cape May shore these August days. It may comfort President Harrison to know that the secretary put himself on record as to this, in 1890. The New York Herald correspondent at Washington gives the details of that now famous appearance of the secretary of state in the appropriations committee room on June 19, 1890, as related to the correspondent by Senator Blackburn, who was present:

"The Secretary was in rather negligee costume, as suited the temperature," said Senator Blackburn, "except as to a particularly glossy and irreproachable silk hat —a brand new shining plug. The Tariff bill, mind you, had nothing to do with the subject in hand, but in a casual way I broached it after the usual greetings had been exchanged.

"Probably I asked Mr. Blaine how he liked it. Imagine my surprise—and shall I say gratification?—when he launched forth a torrent of invective against the act that McKinley fathered. 'This bill is an infamy and an outrage,' said Mr. Blaine. 'It is the most shameful measure ever proposed to a civilized people. Go on with it and it will carry our party to perdition.'

"I was," continued Senator Blackburn, "feeling considerably interested and said, 'I wish you were in the senate, Mr. Blaine, to announce yourself in such terms.' 'I wish I were,' he answered. 'If so I would stamp it under my feet and spit upon it,' and then advancing toward Senators Allison and Hale he snapped his fingers in the face of each alternately and with rising inflection said: —'Go on with your driveling idiocy, and see to what destruction it will lead the republican party! Pass this bill and in 1892 there will not be a man in all the party so beggared as to accept your nomination for the presidency.'"

That should settle it. The bill was passed, the party is driving to destruction, and Blaine is not the beggar to take its nomination in 1892.

THE COLOR QUESTION.

The dissensions that have been smouldering between white and colored members of the G. A. R. posts in the south flames up with considerable heat in the encampment at Detroit. The trouble is dwelt upon at some length by Commander Veazey in his annual address. The recommendation of the commander-in-chief is in brief that the color line be established between ex-union soldiers in the south by the creation of separate departments for white and colored posts.

It appears that prior to 1889 the posts in the south were practically composed of white men. In that year nine posts were organized with colored members. These posts were located in territory which brought them within the jurisdiction of the department of Louisiana and Mississippi. The officers of that department have declined to recognize the posts, which have therefore remained unattached, reporting directly to general headquarters. The course of the southern department officers has been upheld by the members of its attached posts. The members of the isolated and ostracized colored posts have felt the indignation natural under such circumstances. Here is the color line sharply drawn, between members of one fraternal organization, and one in which past service and association would seem to have made that impossible. It is also men of the north, although now living in the south, who ignore the threefold bond of "fraternity, charity and loyalty" between them and their colored brethren.

Commander Veazey recommends the establishment of an independent department for the colored posts, as in his best judgment, after a year's investigation, the best thing to do. He also says:

"From various sources of information that have been accessible to me, I believe that a large majority of both white and colored comrades in the department of Louisiana and Mississippi are strong in their conviction that it would be for the best interests of all individually, and of their posts and of the order."

That this way out of the trouble is not available is shown in the first place by the report of the judge-advocate general, who rules that two departments in the same territory would be unconstitutional; in the second place, by the feeling and attitude of these colored members. Col. James Lewis, of Louisiana, colored, and champion of the rights of the colored posts, says:

"There were 24,800 colored men enlisted in the army from Louisiana, more than from all the other states together. We were regularly enlisted; all fought as the history tells you, and then we were honorably discharged. With these things to our credit we had all the rights of any man to form G. A. R. posts. We did this, and we were recognized by Gen. Alger. When the fight was made on us we had nine posts with a membership of over 1,000, yet we are not recognized by the commander of our department. We get no representation in convention and are ordered to report to the commander-in-chief.

"We have prepared a strong case on the matter and all I ask is 25 minutes in which to present it to the committee or the convention itself. The department commander thinks we want social recognition. I claim the order is not a social one, but a historical and fraternal one."

There is the colored man's side of the question. He was enlisted as was the white man, marched and fought by his side, but now may not sit beside him as his equal in a deliberative and representative body. It would seem he has the right of it, and that his demands must be recognized by the organization. But mark the bitterness with which the northern-born, southern-resident white man of the Grand Army is prepared to fight this. Col. George T. Hodges, commander of the department of Louisiana and Missouri, says:

"Unless the matter is straightened out during this encampment there won't be a member of the G. A. R. south of the Ohio or Potomac a year hence. They are outnumbering us in posts, thus putting us directly under them. That we will not stand. Now, we want to rule ourselves and have colored people go by themselves."

This is the serious question before the present encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, and it is to be earnestly hoped some way out will be found which will be satisfactory to all concerned and an injustice to none.

There is a moral to be drawn from this awkward situation by the south-haters of the north, the outrage-shriekers of the republican party and press, which is: If members of a fraternal organization like the Grand Army of the Republic cannot ignore the color line, why should it be demanded in other relations between the white and colored races in the South? Why should the negro's equality with the white man be made an issue in social and business affairs, while its recognition is denied in a benevolent and fraternal order in which certainly white and black have equal rights?

The ugly yet perfectly natural predicament in which the Grand Army is now placed should at last serve to shut the mouths of these pretended negro-sympathizers of the north, who make political capital by calling upon the south to do a thing the northern men will, as is now demonstrated, under no circumstance do themselves.

New York city had an electrocution that was successful though unintentional on Tuesday night. A bar-tender touching an electric motor in a saloon fell dead after one agonizing cry, killed by less than 500 volts. This is an incidental illustration of the success of this method of taking life.

A national convention in Detroit this week rather overshadowed by the meeting of a larger and older organization is that of the Association of Letter Carriers. The men of the mail-bags have a large and growing organization, on which they are to be congratulated.

President Harrison and Postmaster-General Wanamaker went to church together last Sunday at Cape May, and one of our hopeful exchanges thinks the president expects the postmaster general's reformation rather than his resignation.

AFRAID OF THE LIGHT.

Noble Fears the Next House of Representatives.

Why the Secretary is in Such a Hurry to Resign.

Lincoln to Be Secretary of War, and Noble to Go to England When Proctor Goes to the Senate.

Washington, Aug. 6.—There is much anxiety here to hear from General Noble regarding the reports that he is to retire from the cabinet. It seems to be conceded by everybody that Noble's resignation is now in the hands of the president, but whether Mr. Harrison will accept it is still an open question.

A friend of General Noble's to-day undertook to explain the conditions under which he tendered his resignation. This friend stated first and foremost that the secretary's health was not good and next that his duties as secretary of the interior were growing irksome to him.

He did not explain why the duties were irksome, but he left it to be understood that Raum's continuation as commissioner of pensions and Morgan's continuation as commissioner of Indian affairs was unpleasant to him.

It has been well known here for some time that Noble is very much disgusted with Raum and Morgan and is afraid that the investigating committee of the next house of representatives will worry him considerable when they get after Morgan and Raum next winter.

Of course Noble as the head of the interior department, will be held responsible for the doings of Morgan and Raum, who are his subordinates. This is the reason why Noble insists that Raum and Morgan should be retired.

He told the president that he was responsible for them and could not defend their conduct if the democrats investigated them next winter. Noble's friend stated that when the secretary tendered his resignation to the president that the latter asked that secrecy be maintained and that is the reason why General Noble has not confirmed in person the news of his resignation.

The friend also said that the president desired to call Robert T. Lincoln to the cabinet as secretary of war when Proctor goes to the senate, and that he offered Noble the mission to England, which Noble promptly accepted.

Mr. Lincoln was then consulted by the president, and much to the latter's chagrin Lincoln that he would prefer to remain at his diplomatic post rather than resume the duties of the war department.

This has caused a hitch in Harrison's arrangement, as he felt that the appointment of Lincoln to his cabinet would strengthen him in Illinois, while at the same time he would be providing an agreeable place for General Noble.

The chances are that, the English mission failing, General Noble will be offered the mission to St. Petersburg, which there is no doubt Charles Emery Smith has resigned, although there has been no public announcement of it as yet.

Mr Smith, however, has resumed his duties as editor of the Philadelphia Press and it is no secret among his friends that he does not intend to return to Russia again. General Noble has his books, pictures, and bric-a-brac carefully packed, which leads to the belief that he intends to go abroad whether in an official capacity or not. General Noble does not intend to accept a circuit judgeship. He is in favor of George H. Shields for that place, and has stated to his friends that he would not accept it himself.

It is believed here by politicians that Dick Oglesby, of Illinois, will be given the interior department when Noble formally withdraws. Oglesby will be entirely satisfactory to the land sharks of the west and the corporate barons who have been displeased with Noble's conduct of that department. Oglesby and Raum will pull together, too, both being from Illinois and old friends.

It is entirely probable that Noble will never again resume his duties in the interior department, although it is said that the president is anxious that he should hold on until congress convenes. Noble is anxious to cut loose from it, however, in order to emphasize as strongly as he can for the benefit of the investigating committee of the next house that he is as little responsible as possible for the condition of Raum and Morgan.

WOULD HAVE BEEN BLOODY.

A Riot Narrowly Averted at the Mills.

Both Side Draw Revolvers and Only Cool Action Prevented Their Shooting.

Pittsburg, Aug. 6.—The first trouble at the Vesuvius iron works of Moorehead & Co. since the inauguration of the strike occurred last evening. The 40 men who had been working in the plate mill finished their tasks and awaited the arrival of the 4:30 p. m. train which was to convey the workmen to their hotels in Allegheny.

Five hundred or more strikers and a crowd of citizens were on hand to witness the departure of the non-union men.

As the men were boarding the train they were hissed, cries of "blacklegs" were heard, and a volley of stones and then cinders rattled against the car in which the non-union men were seated.

The men in the car to a man pulled revolvers and pointed them at the strikers. The strikers and citizens who were armed pulled their revolvers, others seized stones and for a moment a terrible riot was imminent.

President Riddle, of the local lodge of the Amalgamated association, Mr. Moorehead, and Deputy Sheriff Ritchie rushed between the crowd and the train, crying to the men to desist.

At this moment the train steamed away and the crowd dispersed. The concensus of opinion is that the boys in the crowd threw the stones at the train. No one was hurt beyond a few scratches.

THE REAL REASON

Why Manager Tobey Threw Up His Job.

"I heard a good joke on the board of natural gas trustees," said Mr. Clarence Brown, this morning. "It is said that the real reason why Dr. Tobey resigned the management of the board has not been published."

"How's that?"

"When he was appointed it was hinted that he was particularly well qualified by reason of his long experience in insane asylums. To-day I was told that he preferred the management of a regularly disciplined institution, where there was some restraint on the inmates."

THE BEE JOB ROOM.

Sold to Mr. George W. C. Hadley. Will Remain in the Present Bee Building.

The business of the Bee has grown to such proportions in all of its departments that the separation of the job room from the newspaper plant is deemed advisable. The newspaper, owned by The Toledo Bee Company, will occupy its magnificent new building on St. Clair street, between Madison and Adams, about September 1.

The job department has been sold to Mr. G. W. C. Hadley, who will occupy the whole of the commodious building now occupied by the Bee. The two offices will be separate and distinct, with no proprietary interest in common.

Mr. Hadley is a cousin of Mr. G. G. Hadley. He has been connected with the Gast Lithographing Company, of New York, for two years past, and for four years prior thereto was connected with the Krebs Lithographing Company, of Cincinnati. He is thoroughly acquainted with the trade, is practical, and we bespeak for him a liberal share of the job patronage of this city.

Mr. Frank L. Gregory, who has long been foreman of the Bee job room, will remain with Mr. Hadley as superintendent. He is well known to all business men and understands all about the trade.

By consent of The Toledo Bee Company Mr. Hadley has permission to use the word "Bee" in connection with his business and will use the words "Bee Job Rooms" to designate it.

FEARS NO CONTEST.

Gen. Hubbard Talks About Mrs. Searles' Will.

He Discredits the Report That the Mother and Son Had an Everlasting Fall Out.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 6.—Gen. William H. Hubbard, one of the executors of the late Mrs. Mark Hopkins-Searles' will, and a member of the party of Wabash railroad officials, is now in the city.

The despatches have announced that Timothy Hopkins would probably contest the will.

Gen. Hubbard says this statement could not have beeen made authoritatively, as Timothy Hopkins was in Japan when his mother died, and will not reach San Francisco until August 12.

"The statement in relation to the contest can e from Russel Wilson, in all probability," said Gen. Hubbard. "Mr. Wilson is a California attorney, but I am not positive that he represents Timothy Hopkins' interests or is authorized to speak for him. The provision of the will, which, by the way, was drawn by Mr. Dodge, a Boston lawyer, in 1888, and not by myself, as stated by some of the papers, stating that the exclusion of Timothy Hopkins as a legatee was intentional, was inserted solely because the statutes of California provide that there must be such a provision, and it has no bearing upon the relations existing between the deceased and the son.

"If Mrs. Searles desired to exclude Mr. Hopkins as a beneficiary, it was necessary under the California law to insert a clause stating that such clause was intentional. I do not apprehend a contest. I have seen Mrs. Searles and Mr. Hopkins together, and their relations seemed to be most friendly, so that the statements that there was animosity between them because of the marriage of Mrs. Searles do not seem to be borne out.

"I believe that young Hopkins objected to the marriage, but I presume it was because he thought it would interfere with his prospects. Mrs. Searles had no other heirs except two nieces.

"I do not believe that Mrs. Searles was influenced by any one in making her will, as she was a woman who knew what she wanted without the influence of others."

"What provision did Mrs. Searles make for Timothy Hopking during life?"

"Well, she made him treasurer of the Southern Pacific railroad at a salary of $10,000 a year, which position he has enjoyed for a number of years. Then he had a liberal allowance from the estate, and when he married her niece he got $100,000. During the last two years she gave him the Lantham property, near Menlo Park, Cal. The place cost Latham a million, it is said, but he failed and Mrs. Searles came into possession of it. This is Hopkins' home.

"This provision for young Hopkins is very liberal considering his origin, but, of course, as a fractional part of the estate is small."

UNLIMITED POWER

To Pipe the Streets, So Says Solicitor Read.

The BEE a few days ago gave the opinion of City Solicitor Read, in reply to a query by Trustee Backus, in which the powers of the natural gas trustees were passed on. Mr. Backus desired further defining, and in reply to his last note the solicitor gives the following instructions:

Put-in-Bay, Aug. 3, 1891.

Hon. A. L. Backus, Toledo, Ohio:

Dear Sir:—Your favor of the 1st has been forwarded to me. You ask if I "want the opinion sent you from Put-in-Bay in answer to your question to stand as it is or do I desire to write it out again." In reply I have to say that I am perfectly satisfied with it as now written. There is absolutely no question—

First—Your board can make such contracts as you deem proper for piping the streets of the city without having the money in the treasury when you contract.

Second—When the money on such contracts is due, if your board has not the funds to pay therefor, the city must provide the same from other sources.

I offered to write a full opinion upon my return, quoting statutes, etc., thinking the same might be more satisfactory to you, in that case you not only would have my opinion, but the law upon which it was based. The opinion would be the same, however.

Respectfully, yours,
W. H. A. READ, City Solicitor.

Only One of the Crowd.

It is stated, on behalf of Mr. McKinley, that, even if defeated in the race for Governorship, he will not be a candidate for the United States Senate. The Two Vital Issues.

The two vital issues of next year's general election are in a very great measure, if not a decisive one, to be fought out this year in Ohio. The case will be stated and argued there for and before the whole country. The outcome is quite as likely as not to determine the wider contest that lies just ahead.

HURON COUNTY GOSSIP.

Captain Kennan to Resign From Company G.

Public Reception to be Tendered a Popular Officer—His Successor —Some Politics.

Norwalk, Aug. 6.—Captain Henry S. Kennan, of Company G, Fifth Regiment, O. N. G., will celebrate his 14th anniversary as a member of the National Guard to-day by tendering his resignation from that organization. Captain Kennan does this with great reluctance and only because on Saturday he will leave with his family for Spokane, Washington.

In his 14 years service Captain Kennan has been almost continuously a member of Company G, except for a short time when he was acting sergeant-major of the Sixteenth Regiment to which the Norwalk company was then attached.

The members of the company have determined to celebrate the withdrawal of Captain Kennan by a public reception at their armory on Friday evening, at which affair a large number of prominent people have been invited and which promises to be an affair of much brilliancy and interest.

Captain Kennan's departure will of course make a vacancy in the captaincy of the company and considerable interest is manifested in the question of his successor.

The feeling in the company is unanimously in favor of Captain Kennan's brother, Lt. Col. C. L. Kennan. Whether Col. Kennan would be willing to resign his position as a field officer, especially in view of the fact that Col. Gibbons ill health has made the question of his resignation a possible one, is of course a question.

It is argued, however, that the four Cleveland companies would never consent to the election of an outsider no matter how popular he might be to the colonelcy.

Col. Kennan is very deeply attached to his old company and as there is really no one whom the company can well rally as a commander, it is hoped he may be willing to make the sacrifice. In case he does Company G, of Norwalk, may be looked upon as the coming company of the Fifth regiment.

Major Osborne, surgeon of the Sixteenth regiment, and his wife and Miss Jessie Pferner, of Toledo, left to-day for Sage's Grove to attend the Sixteenth's encampment, the major being the surgeon of that organization.

Politics.

The announcement that Oak Harbor has been selected as the place for the coming senatorial convention and the 25th instant as the day, has tended to increase the interest in that event.

Mr. H. L. Stewart, who is the leading candidate from this county, is in Pt. Clinton this week looking up his fences in that direction.

In spite of the fact that Postmaster Vail is quietly working up a plan to divide the county forces it is believed Mr. Stewart will have practically a united delegation to the convention. The fact that Dr. Vail still holds his commission as postmaster of this city, a lucrative position which he has enjoyed for a full term, is not regarded by the mass of the democracy as enhancing his claims for a new office before he is out of the old.

He is a shrewd, astute politician, however, popular with his friends, and a wire puller of the most expert description and if he desires to split the Huron county delegation he undoubtedly has the power.

EXERCISED ITS OPTION.

The City Enters Into Another Gas Contract

With Parks Foster & Co., on the Same Old Terms—Mr. Smith Is Paid $4,500 on Account.

At a special meeting of the board of natural gas trustees held yesterday afternoon, several matters of importance were discussed. The action of the board anent supplying the rolling mills with gas is printed in full elsewhere.

Mr. R. W. Smith's claim was again taken up. Mr. Smith, it appears, had purchased the remaining gas bonds in the fund, $4,500, and he asked that he be allowed that amount in his claim.

Dr. Jones moved that $5,000 be allowed on account.

Gen. Greene explained that the reason he had voted against allowing the claim at the previous meeting was that no definite amount had been given in the resolution.

Mr. Brown asked Mr. Smith, who was present, if he was willing to double the amount of his bid made at the last meeting—3,000 feet eight-inch pipe at 80 cents.

After considering the proposition a moment Mr. Smith said he could not, as he had but 3,000 feet on hand, and then he was practically out of the pipe business.

After some further discussion it was unanimously voted to give Mr. Smith $4,500 on account.

One of the chief objects of the meeting was to consider the advisability of exercising the option of the city in extending the Parks-Foster contract.

A motion was made that the city exercise its opinion and direct Parks, Foster & Co. to furnish and lay two miles of pipe in each of the Third and Seventh districts (wards).

The motion was put to a vote without discussion and carried by a vote of 3 to 1—Messrs. Jones, Brown and Green voting aye, Mr. Parson no. Mr. Backus did not come in until later.

The contract has been awarded on the same terms as the former contract. The streets wherein the pipe will be laid have not yet been named, hence the size of pipe and consequent price is as yet unknown.

Insane Prisoners Escape from Auburn.

There were nine of them. The alarm was not given until the two attendants returned an hour later. Then the citizens turned out for the hunt and up to noon five of the convicts had been recaptured.

One was caught while demanding breakfast of a woman. A citizen grappled with him and was getting the worst of it when the woman produced a revolver, enabling the citizen to capture the man.

FOR A BROKEN LIMB.

A Woman Asks $5,000 Damages From the City—Business of the Judiciary Committee.

The council committee on judiciary met last evening and looked into a number of claims against the city. The most important case was that of Mrs. Maria Fero, who was represented by Attorney Curtis. She asks damages to the amount of $5,000 for a broken limb, sustained from falling on a defective sidewalk on Indiana avenue, last November. Mrs. Fero lives on this street. She has never recovered from the accident, and her petition sets forth that she will never again have full use of the limb. The case was laid over for one week for more testimony.

A claim was presented from Frank Pierce for $15 damages for injury to his bicycle caused by a city employe running into it with a horse. The claim was rejected.

A number of claims for abatement of assessments were acted upon. Claims allowed were those of the Merchants' National bank on lot 40, Parkwood addition; L. E. Fleury, on lot 33, Rummel's addition, and Francis Hall, lot on Vermont avenue.

Claims of Mr. Swayne, Mrs. Collins and Mr. Kinney, for abatements were rejected and several claims were referred to subcommittees for investigation.

THE RAVENNA WRECK.

The Coroner's Verdict Has Been Rendered.

Trainmen Charged With Carelessness and the Rules of the Company Criticised.

Ravenna, O., Aug. 6.—Coroner Sherman's verdict on the Erie wreck at this place on July 3 was announced yesterday. After reviewing some testimony and causes which led to the accident, he says: "I can not believe there was criminal intent or criminal neglect on the part of anyone implicated, nor can I believe but each one thought he was in the conscientious discharge of his duty. Thoughtlessness and error of judgment in not forseeing probable danger is the fault rather than recklessness on the part of anyone.

"I hold S. Pendergast, engineer of train No. 8, guilty of carelessness in not notifying the conductor of his train that he had work to do on his engine, that all the crew might have been on the alert for approaching trains.

"I hold Conductor W. H. Young, of train 82, guilty of gross neglect of duty, first in registering and leaving Kent in violation of the rules, second in not using due care and diligence in controlling the speed of his train when crossing the C. & P. railroad crossing at 20 miles an hour in violation of the rules and law. And especially in not ordering his men to apply brakes at Morgan's curve to assist the engineer in coming into Ravenna with the train under control.

"Third—I find J. Holman, engineer of train No. 82, guilty of neglect of duty in not blowing his whistle at Morgan's curve, and that would have notified those at Ravenna of his coming; and of carelessness in not having his train under control.

"Fourth—I hold B. Dyer, watchman at the interlocking station at the C. & P. crossing, guilty of gross carelessness in not blocking the freight train when he saw danger was imminent and thus have avoided the collision.

"Fifth—I hold that certain rules of the N. Y., L. E. & W. Railway company are defective in this—that rule 87, which permits a fast freight to follow a passenger train at an interval of five minutes, is dangerous and not in accord with sound judgment and public safety.

"Sixth—I hold that the company are remiss in duty in not equipping all fast freight trains with air brakes to insure perfect control of heavy trains.

"Seventh—That an emergency danger signal should be placed at every station, and that the person having it in charge should be required to display it in full view whenever a passenger train is detained from any cause beyond its usual time, and that no two fast trains should be permitted on the same territory between contiguous stations at the same time.

"In concluding this report I tender acknowledgements to all parties connected with the examination for the way in which they have given the facts, and especially to the railway officials, who have afforded every facility for arriving at the exact truth."

Coroner Sherman's charge of carelessness against Barney Dyer is being severely criticised to-night by railroad men. He had no authority to hold No. 82, and would probably have lost his job if he had done so. He is only authorized to hold a train against trains on the other road, and is not allowed to interfere with two trains on the same road.

THE KENTUCKY ELECTION.

It appears that in Kentucky the people's party drew its strength chiefly from the republican ranks. The party platform is not yet devised that can lure democrats from their historic allegiance.—Chicago Times.

This adds Kentucky to the list of ballot reform states, which is a particular interesting circumstance in view of the fact that the first experiment with that system made in this country was at the municipal election in Louisville.—Boston Journal.

For a document that nobody was satisfied with, the new Kentucky constitution has done remarkably well at the polls. It is the result of democratic work, and it is fairly satisfactory in spite of the discreditable fact that the republicans professed to be pleased with it.—St. Louis Republic.

Kentucky was the scene of a double victory on Monday. The cause of democracy and of ballot reform as exemplified in the Australian ballot system both triumphed. The legislative majority is made up of farmer democrats, who may now be counted upon to do their duty.—Boston Globe.

The result in Kentucky may be accepted as a fair indication of the sentiment in the south in relation to the third party. It denotes quite plainly that a separate national ticket, as is proposed by the radical leaders of the people's party, would receive little encouragement in the southern states.—Kansas City Star.

The democratic victory in Kentucky clearly demonstrates that the democratic party in the south has nothing to fear from the farmers' alliance. In the legislative districts a number of farmers were elected, but most of them were democratic candidates, the alliance seeking to control nominations rather than to antagonize the party at the polls.—N. Y. World.

As regards the legislature, it is true that a goodly number of farmers have been chosen to it. But it is reported that most of these agricultural members will act with the democrats, and will confine their efforts to shaping the policy of that party as far as possible on alliance principles, an effort in which they will doubtless be measurably successful.—Boston Herald.

It is perhaps unfortunate for Kentucky that the radical and reckless element is in control, especially at this time, when the privileges conferred by the new constitution upon the law-making power are to be exercised. Some cranky and absurd laws may be passed which will be harmful to the whole state.—Rochester Post-Express.

It is too early to analyze the result of yesterday's election in Kentucky, but it is enough to know that it was a democratic victory, with a majority of at least 40,000. The Farmers' alliance revealed considerable strength, but not enough to change the political aspect of the legislature, while the peoples' party were left in the background. The most important issue was the adoption of the new constitution, and for this it is estimated that a majority of nearly 150,000 votes was cast.—Philadelphia Times.

THE RAILROADS.

Talks With Manager Ashley and Chief Arthur.

Passenger Agent Smith of the Lake Shore Lends a Hand to the Veterans—Grist of Interesting News.

The Ann Arbor difficulties are about settled. It was supposed that the men would go out again, on account of the dismissal of a number of engineers and firemen. The company has made no effort to fill the vacancies, but have already laid the engines up, because there is nothing for them to do.

Chief Engineer Arthur was in the city this morning, and with a committee of engineers called upon Manager Ashley and solicited an explanation as to the cause of the discharge of the men.

Said Mr. Ashley to a BEE: "Chief Arthur and a committee paid me a pleasant visit this morning, and the conversation was relative to the dismissal of engineers. I explained that they were discharged for the reason that we had no work for them. Neither Chief Arthur or the committee seemed to take exceptions to our action."

Chief Arthur was seen by a BEE and said: "I was on my way to Chicago and stopped off in Toledo to have a visit with the boys. In company with a couple of them, I called on Manager Ashley this morning in reference to the late difficulties. We learned that the company had laid of the engines because there was no work for them, consequently there was no work for the men. It is not our purpose to compel a railroad company to employ men when they don't need them. As far as the engineers are concerned everything is satisfactory."

One of the committee said to a BEE: "Both sides are satisfied, and so far there is no cause for any further trouble. The men were discharged because they were not needed. We don't believe that the company will put on any new men, but will take back the old ones when business warrants it, or as many as desire to go back."

F. P. Sargeant, grand master of locomotive firemen, is expected in the city to-day.

Excursion Authorized.

The Central Traffic association authorized a rate of a fare for the round trip to Ohio state fair September 14 to 19; West Virginia state fair September 7 to 11; Illinois state fair September 28 to October 3; Indiana state fair September 21 to 26; G. A. R. Knights of Pythias, Springfield, Ill., August 18 to 20; National Encampment S. of V., Minneapolis, August 24 to 29; Knights Templar, Cincinnati, September 23 to 25.

A Timely Act.

The great jam and rush of G. A. R. business to Detroit was apparent in the unusual number of tickets that were not properly drafted, or signed.

A. J. Smith, general passenger agent of the Lake Shore, realized that there would be some difficulty in this respect, and seating himself on a dry goods box at the Brush street depot, placed himself at the disposal of any passenger in a quandary over his ticket. He was at his post every day and corrected over one hundred tickets. Mr. Smith always has the welfare of the patrons of the road at heart, and his timely service on this occasion made many friends for the Lake Shore and added at least 100 friends to his already large host.

That Alton Muddle.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—General Passenger Agent Charlton of the Alton and Chairman Finley of the Western Passenger association locked horns again yesterday over the bill for $259 against the Alton. Chairman Finley urged its immediate payment. To this Mr. Charlton replied:

"In relation to the bill for $259 which you claim is the Chicago & Alton's proportion of expenses of your association for the first half of June, please see last paragraph in my letter to you of July 1. I had presumed that would settle the question, and thought you understood it. As you did nothing for us in the month of June except to leave us without protection and by disingenuous proceedings delay independent action on our part to protect ourselves, I do not know what claim you have against us. You did no work for us, but did do work against us, and we hardly care to pay you for that. If you can, in violation of the agreement, arbitrarily exclude us from the association when you please, are we not equally at liberty to stop pay ng when we please? Considering the damage that has been inflicted upon us by lack of proper protection to which we were entitled and our delay in independently protecting ourselves occasioned by your course in leading us to believe that you intended to take action, it seems to me we have a claim for damages against you instead of you having any claim against us."

BEYOND THE SUNSET.

The road that passed his father's door
He thought stretched on forevermore;
Through fragrant vales of tangled grass,
O'er many a misty mountain pass,
Out into wonders unexpressed
Beyond the cloudlands of the west,
Through lands and cities of renown,
To where the mighty sun goes down.

And so he left his father's door
And said, "I will return no more."

He traveled forth beyond the bridge,
He climbed the lofty mountain ridge,
He passed the river and the town
To find out where the sun went down;
But when he sank at close of day,
The sunset still was far away.

He trod through many a wind-swept glen;
In mighty towns he mixed with men;
The breath of many an alien breeze
Tossed him o'er unfamiliar seas;
He breathed the spicy gale that blows
From southern archipelagoes,
And in the quiet eastern calm
He sou ht sweet sleep beneath the palm,
But when he looked at close of day
The sunset still was far away.

He thought to leave his father's door
And travel on forevermore.

A withered pilgrim, bent and gray,
Kept on his unfamiliar way.
Deep versed in lands, a man of men,
A universal citizen,
He circled all the earth; once more
He stood before his father's door—
Though many years his father slept
Upon the mountain side unwept—
He stood there wrinkled, worn and brown,
He stood there as the sun went down,
And in the twilight dim and gray
The sunset was not far away.

Out from the many millions hurled
He sank down weary of the world,
With his old kindred journey o'er
To die beside his father's door,
And said, a sad smile on his brow,
"I pass beyond the sunset now."
—S. W. Foss in Yankee Blade.

Fraulein Lepper made a considerable sensation at a convention of lady abstainers at Melbourne from all the American colonies by making a vigorous attack on tea. In her opinion, next to alcohol, the greatest master of the human will and destroyer of vitality is tea.

The word "news" was not derived from "new," but from the initials of the points of the compass. Early newspapers carried the initials at the points of a cross at the head of a column, signifying that the matter conta ned therein was from the four quarters of the globe.

The oldest church in Europe is said by some who are discussing the question to be St. Martin's, Canterbury, which was built as a church before the end of the fourth century. St. Mary-in-the-Castle, Dover, was built about this time, but for nearly two hundred years it was used as a garrison fun h depot.

In the Japanese capital there is a gigantic image of a woman, made of wood and plaster, and dedicated to Hachiman, the god of war. In height it measures 54 feet; the head alone, which is reached by a winding stairway in the interior of the figure, being large enough to comfortably hold 20 persons.

W. K. Vanderbilt's private secretary is an Englishman, Frank Foster by name. He is about 30 years of age, six feet tall, and a very reserved and unapproachable man. He has been with Mr. Vanderbilt for two years, and is at his desk in his office at the Grand Central depot every morning as regular as the clock points to 9.

The case of Fitz John Porter is again being discussed in military circles. His restoration to his old rank by congress was largely due to Grant's letter expressing the b lief that there was no serious battle on August 29, 1862, when Porter failed to execute the order given him to advance; but it is now said that the official records being published by the war department reveal that these words, after all, heavy fighting on that day, and that no less than 10,000 men were killed.

A report has been made by the designated committee upon the question of providing suitable accommodations for young men, clerks and others living in London on moderate incomes. It proposes to erect a series of dwellings like the Peabody buildings, properly situated with an eye to business, to accommodate 450 tenants, each to have a sitting room with bed above, for from 10 to 12 shillings a week. There will be common, reception and d ning rooms, library, reading, writing, lecture, smoking, billiard and recreation rooms.

Milo, the island of Cyclades, in which the famous "Venus of Milo" was discovered, has again been the scene of the unearthing of a splendid example of ancient Hellenic art. The new "find" is the marble statue of a boxer, somewhat above life size, which is almost as perfect after its burial under the dust of centuries as it was when it came fresh from the hands of the sculptor. The statue has been shipped to Athens, where a commission of Greek archæologists, aided by some members of the German Archæological institute in Athens, will report upon the period of its origin and its probable creator.

It is not an unheard of thing for a man to delegate to his wife the care of his wardrobe and the task of keeping the run of the social engagements, but who ever heard of a man who had to be sent to his meals? In Brunswick, Me., there is such a man. His wife was away and he was to take his meals at a restaurant. The first day of her absence he paid no attention to the supper hour, but kept right on working until it was time to close his place of business, when he went home and retired, without getting any supper. The next morning he left the house early, and going to the shop began his work, never thinking of his breakfast until nearly 11 o'clock.

The first wedding in the Salvation Army of this country, where the ceremony was performed by a woman, unassisted by any minister, took place last Thursday evening, at the Woman's Training garrison of the army, Broadway and Forty-fifth street, New York. Mrs. Ballington Booth, wife of the commander of the forces in America, officiated, reading the Salvation Army marriage service, which was repeated after her by the bride and groom, "Staff Captain" Ida May Harris and "Adjutant" Wallace W. Winchell, both of whom have served in the army five years. The couple will go to Illinois, where they have been assigned to duty.

The best paying property in Nevada is a mine, whose history is thus told by the Central Nevadan: "Simeon Wenban had run the Garrison tunnel at great expense and was left a poor man, owing his cre itors $150,000. There was not a pound of ore in sight whereby the debt might be paid. As a last resort, with a forlorn hope, after the mine had been closed, Simeon Wenban drilled a hole in the hanging wall and blasted out a huge piece of rock, which he found to be almost a solid block of metal and part of an immense vein which had been paralleled hundreds of feet. This fortunate last effort marked a sudden change that seldom falls to the lot of man. It was Wenban, the poor man, the laborer, before that blast was fired; it was Simeon Wenban, th millionaire, but a second thereafter. The first month's run of his little mill gave him $80,000, and ever since he has grown more wealthy."

A RHYME OF ROBIN PUCK.

Howsoe'er the tale be spread,
Puck the prankSome, is not dead.

At such tidings of mishap,
Any breeze-blown columbine
Would but toss a scarlet cap.—
Would but laugh, with shaken head,
"Trust it not, do not repine,
Puck the prankSome, is not dead!"
If you know not what to think,
Ask the tittering bobolink;
Straightway shall the answer rise
Blobbing from his gleeful breast:
"Dead? 'Tis but his latest jest!
Robin Puck, the wild and wise,
Frolics on, and never dies!"

Had we but the elfin sight,
On some pleasant summer night
We should see him and his crew
In the fields that gleam with dew;
Had we but the elfin ear
(Pointed sharply like a leaf),
In the meadows we should hear
Fairy pipings, fine and brief,
Shrilled through throats of tiniest flowers
Would that subtler sense were ours!

Tricksy Puck! I shall not tell
How it is I know him well.
Swift yet clumsy bumpy yet wee,
Brown as hazel-nut is he;
And from either temple springs
Such a waving, hair like horn
As by butterflies is worn;
Glassy-clear his glistening wings,
Like the small green-bodied flies
In the birch-woods; and his eyes,
Set aslant, as bla kly shine
As the myriad globes wherein
The wild blackberry keeps her wine;
And his voice is piercing rain,
But he changes that at will—
Mocking rogue!—with birdlike skill.
How it is I must not tell,
But you see I know him well.

Ah! with some rare, secret spell
Should we bathe in moonlit dew
Eyes that this world's book have read,
We should see him and his crew
In the dreamy summer deir:
For, howe'er the tale be spread,
Puck, the prankSome, is not dead!

THE GIRL QUEEN OF THE NETHERLANDS.

Wilhelmina, queen of the Netherlands, was born at The Hague, on August 31, 1880, and received the full name of Wilhelmina Helena Paulina Marie. The monarchy of the Netherland includes not only Holland, but its colonial dependencies in South A nerica and the East and West Indies. These colonies are both rich and extensive, covering an area of 800,000 square miles and containing a population of more than 27,000,000, six times that of Holland itself.

The youthful Dutch queen is the daughter of William III., who died on November 23, 1890, and of Emma Adelaide Wilhelmina, princess of Waldeck-Pyrmont. Her father was the last descendant in the direct line of one of the most famous families of Europe, the house of Orange-Nassau, which has given to history three world-famous figures. William the Silent, the first Stadtholders of the Dutch republic; his son Maurice, and William II., who became also king of England.

From her early childhood Princess Wilhelmina has been trained to prepare her for her royal duties. She has been carefully educated under an English governess, having been required to master the English and French languages as well as the Dutch, and great attention has been given to her diet, exercise, and all that could contribute to her health. She has also received the constant supervision of her mother, a woman of amiable character and excellent judgment, who is greatly and deservedly beloved in Holland, and who acts as queen regent during her daughter's minority. As princess, Wilhelmina is dressed plainly, wearing simple white gowns, and having as her only ornament a turquoise or pearl necklace.

She will not take up the full duties of queen for six or seven years to come, and probably there will be no great change in her habits and privileges in the interval.

The people of Holland have welcomed her to the throne with feelings of tender pride and interest akin to those with which more than half a century ago Great Britain greeted the accession of their "Bonny English Rose," the Princess Victoria, then a girl still in her teens. That Queen Wilhelmina has already won the love of the Dutch has been shown by the fact that even during her father's life her birthday, although not a regular fete, was usually celebrated with public rejoicings by the people.—August St. Nicholas.

ALPHONSO XIII., THE BOY KING.

The crowns of three of the hereditary kingdoms of Europe are now worn by children. The oldest in length of reign and youngest in years is Alphonso XIII., of Spain. He has been a king from the day of his birth, May 17, 1886, his father, Alphonso XII., having died a few months before.

As the youngest child of Alphonso XII. was a boy, under the laws of Spain which declare that the royal title shall descend in the male line whenever that is possible he became king at once, taking rank above his sisters, the first born of whom then ceased to be queen of Spain and became only princess of the Austrias. The short life of this titled boy has been less happy than that of many of his little subjects, for his health has not been good, and he has passed through some severe illnesses which have left him a frail rather than robust child. He has recovered from his illnesses without serious results, and is now a knowing and attractive little boy, who loves play and delights in mischief, even though he does live in a palace and is surrounded with all the ceremony of a court.

As many amusing stories are told of his fright savings and comical acts as are told of wonderful babies of less prominent families.

One anecdote relates to his first attendance at chapel. Great pains had been taken to make him understand that he must sit very still during the service, and especially must not say a word. He listened eagerly and in silence to the organ, but when the priest commenced to speak the small monarch called out, "Stop! you must not talk in chapel."

His pictures are common in Europe, and all of them are pleasing. In one he is in the chair of state. On a footstool, before him, are his two sisters, and at his right hand sits his mother. Standing before him, in a rich uniform, is one of the high officers of Spain, who is reading a long address to his sovereign as solemnly as if he were in the presence of a monarch of ripe years. Not only do the baby eyes stare in surprise at this interruption of fun and frolic, but the mouth also is wide open, while one tiny hand clutches with all its puny strength the fingers of his faithful Andalusian nurse, who stands waiting behind the monarch's chair of state.

He is greatly liked by his people, and his daily appearance in Madrid with his sisters, in his little carriage drawn by four mules, always calls out universal expressions of affection. It is especially fortunate that his mother is a woman of good sense, high character, and exceedingly kind heart. She was an archduchess of Austria and is now Queen Maria Christina, reigning as regent until her son reaches the age of sixteen years. She has greatly endeared herself to the people of her adopted country by her wisdom and her benevolence. Lately, the eloquent leader of the Spanish republicans, Senor Castelar, explained the quiet condition of his party by saying: "One cannot make war upon a baby and a woman!"—August St. Nicholas.

SCHEMES.

"I'm going to sleep alone to-night. Little Hi is so restless! He keeps me awake rattling or talking about those coppers he's saved up. Or, if he forgets and leaves them in his pants he scrambles out of bed after them. It seems to be his scheme to waken me up early!"

Jerry spoke fast and his eyes flashed.

His mother answered slowly, and her eyes, just the color of Jerry's, were full of kindness, "But the little fellow likes to sleep with you better than with any of the other boys."

"Well, I like to have him when I don't have to study so hard. You know it takes me longer to cipher since my slate got so cracked up the other day. So I'm going to sleep alone and see if that little schemer don't stop that jingling."

And away Jerry went, shaking some coins in his pocket as if to illustrate what he had to endure when he was tired and sleepy.

He kept out of doors the remainder of the afternoon, and spoke to little Hi but twice during supper.

Hi peeped across the study-table at Jerry in a pleasant way several times that evening, though he went and sat down beside his big brother Tom when he found that the other brother wouldn't look up from his cipherIng.

"Guess his dismal factions hurt him," whispered Hi. "His forward looks most as wrinkled as grandpa's."

Jerry was delighted to see how ready Tom was to answer the little fellow, and went up to bed before his sums were all done.

He fastened his door, too, and planned quite a savage speech for Hi when he should try to get into the chamber.

But Hi came upstairs with Tom and quietly went to bed with him.

"Guess mother explained to the little toad," said Jerry to himself. "Hope she did, anyway."

He stretched himself out at full length in the bed, took H.'s pillow and put it on top of his own, and thought, "Well, this is something like it."

But somehow the bed didn't feel so comfortable as usual. The cold kept creeping in at the sides. The clothes didn't seem to be tucked in well at the foot. The pillows had to be changed about several times.

Jerry dreamed about lots of disagreeable things, too, when at last he fell asleep. And he started straight up in bed when he wakened in the morning.

"Can't you keep still,—" Then he realized that he had been sleeping all alone. Little Hi had not been kicking him.

"Oh, I see why the little fellow went off to sleep with Tom," said Jerry to himself. "It's a real dark, cloudy morning and they just schemed to let me oversleep, and so be late at school. It isn't very early, I guess, but I'll show them I can waken myself and get there in time."

He dressed as quickly as he could, ran downstairs, and caught up his books and cracked slate.

"Ah, I see, the folks are in the plot, too," he thought as he noticed how still the house was. "But I'm going without breakfast for the sake of getting ahead of them."

So he passed by the dining-room with his head very erect. And how he dashed down the street! He couldn't help wondering, that so few people were astir. Surely the whole neighborhood didn't know the joke which Hi and Tom had been playing upon him, and so were keeping as still as they could. And yet a man called out to him, "Been an earthquake down to your house Jerry?"

"No, but you'll find one down to your shop if you don't hurry," answered the lad, panting for breath.

"Not unless there's been one at work on the clock up there," said the man, pointing to the church steeple. One, two, three, four, five, six! rang out from the faithful clock.

Jerry rubbed his ears and strained his eyes. He was so busy with these exercises that he didn't hear the man call out, "Guess you don't know what day it is!"

"Thought 'twas rather still there," said Jerry, facing toward home. "But I won't go back. I'll go to the school house."

He dodged into several alleys so as to be sure and not meet people whom he knew. He went away around the homes of some of his school mates, so he was quite a while in reaching the school; and how hungry he felt as he turned into the yard!

He went to the side of the school-house on which his seat was located, and started rather nervously as he heard a rustling at the back of the building.

And such a look as came upon his face when he saw little Hi peeping around the corner!

"The little toad's come out to watch me," was his first thought. "Such a schemer!"

But Hi laughed and called out, "Hello, Jerry," as he vainly tried to hide a package behind him. "Well, here 'tis," he cried, running to Jerry with joy shining out on every inch of his round face. "'Twas cute of you to slip off to bed and let me sleep with Tom. Don't know how I'd got it all ready if you hadn't. But I heard you rolling over as though your dismal factions hurt you. Or was you lonesome without me, and—"

"Why, what is this?" asked Jerry.

"A new slate for a s'prise. Thought that would be better than a foolin'. Didn't you know 'twas the first day of April? I've been savin' up my pennies for this ever since your slate got cracked. Guess dismal faction won't be so hard now. And I'll never, never, get Tom to paint on piece of paper to go with it.

"'If you love me as I love you,
We'll sleep together the whole year through.'

"But I wanted awful bad to hide it in your seat, and give you a truly s'prise."

"Never mind that," said Jerry, hugging the little fellow as hard as he could.—Morning Guide.

Special Low Prices on Pianos at THE WHITNEY-CURRIER CO.
Inasmuch as we have not room at our place of business for more than two years the expense incident to tearing up and removing every two or three years has been saved. This enables us to give lower prices, better bargains and better goods than any migratory concern who uses the necessity for "moving" as a pretext for offering sham Inducements. We shall continue through July and August, this year and next, to offer extraordinary inducements to buyers of pianos and organs to patronize our house. We sell the best pianos made, acknowledged and recognized as such, as well as commoner grades, such as offered by our competitors. Our price, when grade and quality is considered, is lower, by far, than has heretofore been offered by any Toledo dealer or agent.

THE REAL ESTATE MARKET,

Not Much Doing Just at the Present Time.

A Few Good Deals Made This Week,

But Money Is Too Tight to Permit of a Lively Movement—Building and Loan Interests.

Real estate this week has been exceedingly dull, there being but very little movement of any description. About two good sized deals marked the activity of the week. The sale of building lots and a little inquiry are about the only agencies that kept the real estate dealer from dozing over his plats and "commission books."

Money is more stringent than ever, which is due to the large amount of cash which is being tied up in grain every day. The present pinch is only temporary, as a major portion of the money has been loaned by the banks to grain dealers for 60 and 90 days. Before the expiration of that time, local products will be on the market, and it is anticipated by business men that there will be a general looseness in money matters.

The Laborer and Home.

"You will find as a rule that when the laboring man is the busiest that there is the lightest movement in outside building lots," remarked James H. Campbell, real estate dealer, who takes a lively interest in the affair of workingmen, and does considerable business with them. "You will also learn by making the necessary inquiry that the deposits in the savings banks increases at the same time. Workingmen as a rule do not receive the credit they deserve, and if the people would take the time to acquaint themselves with him and the manner in which he lives, they would be considerable wiser by the experience.

"The great trouble is he is judged by the class of people whose names and deeds constitute our police court records.

"I have had dealings with the 'common laborer,' as some people choose to term him, all my life, and am pretty well posted on the subject. It is true there are rogues and worthless fellows among them, but the per centage is no greater than among any other class of people. I am not speaking of drones and idlers now, but of those who work the year around at one thing and another.

"These are the men who are industrious and economical, and if you go among them you will learn that their only object is to secure a home of their own, and to this end they are saving every penny.

"They are getting homes, too. Go where you will, in any part of the city, you will find the 'common laborer ensconsed in a comfortable home of his own, happy and content. This most satisfactory state of affairs is due to the labor organizations, which are an incentive to self respect and independence, and these are the qualifications of a good citizen."

Laid to the Grain Dealer.

"Everything is quiet just at present" said E. R. Hiett, secretary of People's Building, and Loan company. "There isn't much building, real estate is not moving, and in fact there is a lull in business generally."

"How do you account for this state of affairs?"

"Well, in the first place, money has been close everywhere for two months or more, but there never has been a time until within the last week or two, that a business man, I mean merchant or manufacturer, could not go to a bank and make what loans he wanted. At present it is like pulling teeth for any one but grain dealers to get a dollar from the banks, on gilt edge security.

"It is not because the banks are not willing to loan it, but for the simple reason that they haven't got it.

The grain men have simply knocked the money market off its feet, and the same thing occurs at this time every year, to the great disadvantage of the merchant and manufacturer and business in general.

"Grain men go to the bank, draw $150,000 at a time for 30 or 60 days, paying the banker a higher rate of interest, consequently when a man presents securities to make a small loan, he can't get it."

"A merchant or manufacturer can't come to Toledo with any assurance of deriving any benefit from local bank capital the year round, on account of the drainage made by grain dealers at this time every year. I would like to see two or three banks instituted in Toledo that would be pledged not to loan a cent to grain dealers under any consideration."

The State League Meeting.

The Ohio Building Association League will meet in annual session at Cincinnati, August 12. Secretary Hiett, of this city has issued the following call:

The third annual meeting of the Ohio Building Association league will be called to order at West Cincinnati Turner Hall on Freeman avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio, at 2:30 P. M., Wednesday, August 12th, 1891.

The Building Association people of Cincinnati are leaving nothing undone to make the annual meeting a success. They have arranged for headquarters of the league and executive committee at the Dennison house, the proprietors of which have kindly named a very satisfactory rate for all Building Association guests on this occasion.

If you want to do your own association the greatest good you can? If you want to maintain and increase the excellence of the Building associations of Ohio? If you want the benefit of seeing how hundreds of other associations are conducted differing from your own? If you want to hear the discussion of Building association methods, by leading practical building association men of Ohio? If you want to know the latest and best methods in any department of Building association work? If you want any new state laws enacted? If you want the present law changed? If you want the present control of foreign associations maintained? If you want to know about the report which the inspector of Building associations will require? If you want to do your part in caring for the mutual interests of Ohio Building associations, see to it promptly that your association is represented at its third annual meeting of the largest Building association league in the United States. Have your association join the league at once, if it is not now a member. The $5.00 membership fee also pays the first year's annual dues. Besides the consideration of many questions that will affect every association in the State, papers and talks will be given on various subjects among which are the following: "The Auditing of Building Associations," "The Nickel Savings Stamp System," "The Relation of Old Associations to the New Law," "Why is Money sold as at Auction," "Membership Fees and Fines," etc., etc.

Mr. Hiett yesterday issued a call for a meeting of the executive committee on the morning of August 12 at 10 o'clock at the Dennison house.

Secretary Hiett will read a paper on the "Nickel Savings Stamp System."

The People's Declared a Dividend.

The directors of the People's Saving and Building association met Tuesday afternoon and closed up business for the first six months of the year. They also declared an 8 per cent. dividend for the year.

The half year just closed was the most prosperous term of the association's existence. The receipts for the six months amounted to $289,420.66, with loans on mortgages of $104,651.71. Seventy-five per cent of this amount was invested in new structures.

A Good Sale.

One good sale went to redeem the inactivity of business during the week to some extent.

The sale was made by Frederick B Lozenby to Margaret A. Lozenby and the consideration was $8,500.

The property involved were lots 174 and 180 of Mott's first addition. The lots are located on Nettie street, between Washington and Belle streets. Also lots 1 and 2 of Louis addition. These lots are located on Monroe street opposite the Milburn wagon works. The deal also included 40 feet off from the rear of lot 21, Louis addition.

A New Industry.

The only deal consummated this week of unusual proportions was the sale of a lot front, 60 feet on Erie street and 120 feet on Washington street.

The property was sold by George Pomeroy to the Armours who will erect an immense warehouse for the storage of meats. Toledo will be made a distributing point for Northwestern Ohio. It will be an important addition to Toledo's many industries.

Ready for Business.

The directors of the Central Building and Loan association met last evening at Secretary Greer's office.

The committee appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws reported, which after being reviewed by the board, was adopted.

A goodly sum has been paid in on stock and a number of applications for loans filed.

CLOSE UP.

The Police Board Decides to Enforce Sunday Closing

On Dry Goods and Other Stores—Reports of Police Business for the Month.

The regular meeting of the board of police commissioners was held last evening, but the principal business was the consideration of monthly reports from the different department under their control.

From the health department the following report was made: The meat and milk inspector condemned 27 bushels of cherries, one bunch of bannanas and one hog as unwholesome food; the sanitary force condemned 100 pounds of codfish, 50 pounds of smoked meat, 100 pounds of white fish, one half barrel of mince meat and four bunches of bannanas during the month, and in this time 875 complaints were attended to.

The number of deaths reported were: Class 1, zymotic, 47; class 2, constitutional 23; class 3, local, 64; class 4, developemental, 6; class 5, violence, 12. Total for the month, 152. Sex—Males 85; female 67. Color—White 149; colored 3. Condition—Married 33; single 105; widowed 8; not stated 6.

Premature and still born 10; brought here for interment 3; rates per 1,000 18.39. During the month the city physicians made 212 visits and attended to 106 office calls.

The chief's report showed that during the month the total number of arrests in city cases were 257 and in state cases 376. All were for minor offenses excepting that of Michael Ganslein for murder.

A number of bills were audited and the pay roll for the month approved.

It was voted to turn over the reward of $60 for the arrest of a United States army deserter to Officer Dan O'Sullivan, who made the capture.

In accordance with a request from Auditor Walker a resolution was adopted asking for the issue of $10,000 worth of bonds for the sanitary fund.

Charges were made against Officer George Schwikoski for neglect of duty and loafing about saloons on Lagrange street. The case was set for the next meeting, when it will be heard.

A petition was presented from the Clerk's Protective union asking to have the Sunday closing ordinance enforced against all dry goods, clothing, furnishing and shoe stores. The petition was sigbed by all the principal down-town mercants, and a motion carried directing the chief to enforce the Sunday ordinance as petitioned for, Mr. Kruse alone voting against it.

THEY SAID "SCHOOL BUTTER."

This Simple Phrase, in the Mountains of Tennessee, Produced Strange Results.

The people who live in the thinly settled parts of the Blue Ridge mountains of western North Carolina and East Tennessee are perhaps as primative as any in the union, though possessed of remarkable pluck, courage and withal a keen sensitiveness. Many of them can neither read nor write, dozens have never seen a railroad and scores have lived and died without setting foot outside the limits of their native counties. But they can all shoot a rifle—that is, the men—and their wives can card, spin and weave wool. The race is a strong, hardy one, and the adventure of two young southerners which follows will show the kind of pupils which a school has, when once it may be started in one of these decidedly rural districts.

The two boys were returning from a camping trip of two weeks in the mountains to their homes in upper South Carolina, when the experience was encountered. They were traveling in a one-horse wagon of the ordinary farm variety and carried two guns—one a Remington rifle of small calibre and the other a single-barrel, breech-loading shotgun. It was in the month of August, which to the farmers of that mountainous country is the dullest part of the year, and it is in this month that the schools, when there are any, are in full blast.

The young men were driving slowly along, smoking and enjoying the ride, when they passed a school-house setting back from the road in a grove of young oak and chestnut trees. They knew from its appearance that it was a school, though the building was constructed much like a rude church, being made of unplained pine planks.

It must be said here that there is a saying in certain parts of the south which, though unintelligible and seemingly nonsensical, will always put a schoolboy on his mettle to uphold the honor of his teacher and himself. It is "School butter," and when one shouts out the two mystic words in passing a school he must prepare to make himself scarce. Naturally in the mountains, where the people are rough, the punisement to the offender when caught is not confined to "bumping" or "paddling," as in town, but he is apt to be severely handled—sometimes even maimed for life.

The boys knew something of this, but thoughtlessly gave the shout of defiance. The answer was not long in coming, and a cold chill ran down the backs of the boys as they saw the crowd, which almost at once began to pour from the building. To whip up the lazy mule was out of the question and a half dozen wild schemes were presented to their minds for escape. But they were futile, for the half hundred men and boys who were coming for the wagon in a run meant business. The leader was the teacher himself in an exceedingly simple garb, consisting of a blue pair of jean trousers and a white shirt made of heavy sheeting. He was a six-footer, every inch of it, and was minus coat, hat and shoes. His rupils ranged down from men of about 35 to boys of 12, and as they came like the charge of the Light Brigade they gathered stones and sticks for the coming fray.

When within 100 feet of the wagon it suddenly stopped and the two occupants picked up their guns and faced the crowd. The pursuers stopped and glared sullenly at the weapons.

"What do you want?" asked one of the boys in the wagon.

"Did you uns holler 'school butter' at us?" was the reply from the leader.

The conversation, which was long and evidently cautious on both sides, need not be detailed, as the boys made a kind of apology which the mountaineers were forced to accept on account of the guns. They turned slowly back and soon filed into school with many angry glances.

"That was a close call," said one of the boys, as he pulled the iron cleaning rod from the muzzle of the rifle, where it had been all the time.

"Yes," said the other, as he opened his shot gun at the breech and looked through the barrel. The cartridges were soon rescued from a bag in the back part of the wagon beneath the baggage.

Had the mountaineers known the guns were unloaded they would doubtless have beaten the owners into insensibility.—New York World.

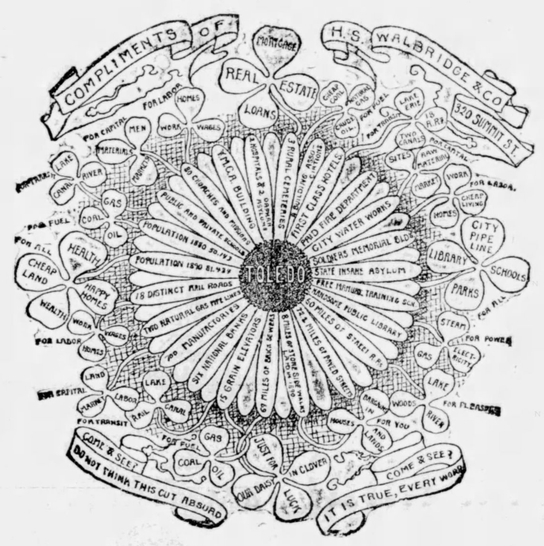
A WORD WITH YOU!



Whether one believes in the doctrines of Henry George or is inclined to lean Bellamywards he knows that the fundamental bottom of all investment is land and that which is built upon land.—N. C. FOWLER.

From eighty to ninety per cent of all sales of lands and houses, and of all intents to buy or build begin in the minds of the to-be purchasers during the season of the year when business relaxes, giving time to consider home and home comforts. Summer is pre-eminently the time for buying land and planning for building houses. Your business is slack. You have time to rest, and the mornings and evenings are delightful. When is there a better time to look at property and think of owning your own home, and when thinking of this, and of the best part of the city in which to build, your thoughts will naturally turn to

FINANCE AND TRADE.

The market quotations in the BEE are compiled from United Press special dispatches and from reports received by the Toledo Produce Exchange, and specially arranged by Mr. Dennis B. Smith, secretary of the Exchange

OFFICE OF THE TOLEDO BEE, TOLEDO, O., Aug. 5.

London wheat and corn markets steadier. Weather cold and wet. Liverpool wheat quiet, light demand, prices steady. Corn made lower, demand for local speculation.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 739,522 bu, compared with 330,252 bu on the same day last year.

Lake freight at Chicago declined yesterday ¼c, to 3c on wheat. Lake and rail rates on grain were advanced to the basis of 10c on corn to New England and 10c on wheat to New York, except by one line, which is making a rate of 9c on wheat to New York.

The "Bulletin" says: "The lease of the Dole & Co. elevators have been transferred to Armour & Co., and the latter have filed their bond with the board of trade, which has been approved by the directors."

Comment—It seems that private ownership of elevators at Chicago must give bonds to become regular.

The Minneapolis "Market Record."—Harvesting of spring wheat is reported begun at some points in Minnesota and will be quite general this week. The cool weather has caused the crops to mature slowly, increasing the quality of the grain. The reported yield of winter wheat is large ranging from 30 to 42 bu per acre and the oats and barley crops are turning out excellent. The weather generally is very fine for harvesting.

South Dakota Crops.

Huron, S. D., Aug. 2.—The government crop bulletin, just issued by the bureau here, says that the largest crop raised in the state for years is now being harvested. Nothing has occurred to hinder it, and the southern counties have practically finished. The yield is in excess of expectations.

An expert for a Chicago house, who is in South Dakota, writes that the crop in the southern, eastern and northeastern parts of the state will be excellent, but that the northern counties, comprising about one-fourth of the acreage of the state, are badly spotted and will bring the average of the whole down considerably.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points were 419,270 bus. in excess of the corresponding Thursday in 1890.

The export clearances yesterday from four Atlantic ports were enormous, and aggregated 929,000 bus. of wheat and flour to make the total a million of bus. Corn, 35,000 bus.

English markets, as reported herein, are steady in spite of the decline on this side. It is worth noting when English markets do not follow our breaks, because, as we have contended, we can and ought to control the prices of the world this year.

Southern Rail Rates and Lake and Rail Rates to the Seaboard.

Chicago reports that the New York Central propeller line, lake and rail to New York, has advanced the rate to New York on wheat to 10c per bu, that other lines have followed this lead except one, which is charging 9c per bu. There is no change in the rates from southwestern points to Baltimore, New York or Philadelphia so far made public. Assuming this statement to be correct what is likely to be the course of business under it? Of course, in the ratio that rates are advanced from the lake ports without corresponding advance in southwestern through rail rates to the seaboard, so will the tendency be for grain to be deflected from the lake to the southern rail routes. Under such conditions what is the best policy. To depress prices of grain at the lake ports, or to give plain illustrations of its value in consequence of a cheap water rate, say from Toledo to the seaboard, and England, as compared with rail.

The Erie canal breaks have added to the cost of freight, hence, but it will soon be ready for business, and contracts are being made at 3½ cents, equal to 4⅝ cents over all charges, from Buffalo, or equal to 6¾ from Toledo to New York.

Receipts of Wheat.

The movement of wheat seems to decrease in the ratio of increased estimates of the aggregate crop. A scarcity of cars may be one element in the account, but it is rather obvious that other influences are also at work. Tennessee farmers are holding so closely that millers resort to the purchasing wheat west. Whatever the causes there is a general shrinkage all along the line.

Large Ohio yields.—A field of 27 acres in Van Wert county yielded 1,166 bu, or 43 bu to the acre. It was threshed from the stock and weighs 60 to 61½ pounds. Mr. Dull the proprietor wants to know if this yield is beaten in Ohio considering size of field, etc?

Mr. Paddock, of Central Illinois, writes that the largest yield in that vicinity is eighteen bushels, and thirty-five bushels the greatest.

The great decrease in receipts of wheat at all western centers, together with the export decreases of over a million bushels in wheat and flour, looks like running the canals at both ends. But we can spare this wheat and have a little more back of us to come forward—that is to say—so we are informed.

American Crop.

We have another amateur estimate from Cincinnati of the American wheat crop. Estimating the entire wheat field by the largest given yields, the author refuses to make the crop a bushel less than 585,000,000 or 685,000,000, and it don't make any difference which. On the evening of Monday next we shall have the government estimate.

The Markets

On this side have been weak and strong by turns to-day. Opening weak, the decreased receipts, steady English markets and enormous exports, prices became firmer and later weak. Differences have not been made, and east prices closed about as yesterday. At Chicago ⅞c to ¾c lower.

Corn in New York closes ⅜ lower for August, and steady for September. In Chicago, ¼ up on September.

In Toledo, wheat futures have been active to-day for each August, September and December. While the news has been stimulating, our dealers were not much stimulated by it and prices have been lower, closing for August ¾c and Sept. ⅝c lower, while Dec. was ⅜c higher. On the call August and Sept. sold at 90c; Dec. at 92¾c. After the call August sold at 90⅜@90¾c and closed at 90¾c. September sold at 90¼@90⅝c and closed at 90c. December sold at 92¾@93⅛c and closed at 93⅛c.

Cash wheat was much less active. Demand was less urgent and sales much less. Market declined ⅝c. No 2 soft, 90¼c; No 3 soft at 89¼c; No 4 soft at 87c. Rejected No 1 at 83c; No 2 white at 90c.

Corn—Very little doing; No 2 at 64c. Oats—No. 2 white at 34c, No 2 at 30c, August 28c bid. Rye—On the call No 2 for August sold at 76⅝@76¾c; after the call No 2 at 76c, a decline of 1c; No 3 at 73½c. Clover seed—October at $4.40.

Freights.

Lake freights to Buffalo—Wheat 2c. Corn,.....c

Lake and rail rate to New York, 7½c wheat, 7¾c corn; Boston, 10¼c wheat, 8½c corn; Philadelphia, 6¾c wheat, 6¾c corn; Baltimore, 6¾c wheat, 6¾c corn.

Resulted in Murder.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Yesterday J. M. Rye shot and killed J. J. Wheeler at Clifton Beach, a place on the Potomac about forty miles below Washington. Stories circulated about Wheeler, who was a school teacher, have been attributed to Rye, and yesterday Wheeler called on the latter and asked for an explanation of the defamatory statements about Wheeler's character. A fight ensued and Rye shot the teacher. Rye escaped across the river into Virginia and a posse is now searching for him.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND.

Barnum & Bailey Coming to Delight and Instruct Them.

After charming the little princesses of England, the daughters of the Prince of Wales, and hosts of the children of the nobility of Europe, Barnum & Bailey are going to cause a flutter in the hearts of the little folks in this city, by bringing their Show here, and what a wealth of wonders and embarrassment of features Barnum & Bailey have collected for exhibition in their Greatest Show on Earth this year! The wonder is, not that they exist, but that they can crowd so much into their tents and show them all in one day. Cages, steam musical chariots and others, wild beasts, and horses in the horse fair, trained animals, herds of elephants, hippodrome races, three circus companies, two menageries, aviary, 1,200 performers, an army of employes, and, in fact, everything that money can buy. Besides all this, "Nero, or the Destruction of Rome," undoubtedly the most instructive, as well as the grandest spectacle ever produced; familiarizing the mind of the youth of the country with the customs of old Rome; with Arabian horses, arms, religious articles and all the accoutrements and paraphernalia belonging to the days of glorious old Rome. Four trains with sixty-four railroad cars, more in reality than was ever exhibited before in any country at one time, bright, rich, and grand, and the tone of the whole pure, moral and conspicuously clean. Barnum & Bailey have certainly a great show, and they are both great men, as well as being the benefactors of the public and the teachers of the children.

Their whole undivided shows will be here on August 15, and the great free street parade takes place in the morning at 9 o'clock.

THE PATEK, PHILIPPE & CO. WATCH.

No watch in the history of horology has ever attained to such prominence as the "PATEK, PHILIPPE & CO." It has been awarded the highest premiums at all the great national expositions of the world.

The great reputation it now enjoys has not been accorded to it from any one watch specially made by MESSRS. PATEK, PHILIPPE & CO. for exhibition purposes, but from their general uniformity of excellence and superiority.

The most prominent jewelers of the United States now carry the PATEK, PHILIPPE & CO. as their best watch.

Sixty Years' Bondage.

ALLENDALE, ILL., June 20, 1890
Dr. J. W. Bergen, Petersburg, Ind.:
DEAR SIR—I have been afflicted with asthma over sixty years, and have tried everything for it and for over nine months I had two doctors waiting on me, and they both gave me up to die. I commenced taking Dr. J. W. Bergen's Asthma Cure, and have taken three bottles of it and I am better than I have been for fifty years. I am able to do my own work, and can give the medicine great praise, and wish every one who is afflicted with that awful disease would give it a trial. Yours truly,
MRS. MARY HUNTER.
